U. N. Assembly Adopts Truce Plan, 54 To 5

Russian Bloc Countries Cast Negative Votes

Lull Is Expected Until Reds React

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 3 (AP) — The U. N. General Assembly approved overwhelmingly today an Indian plan for peace in Korea. It was ordered dispatched speedily to Red China and North Korea with and appeal for their quick acceptance. They and Moscow have already condemned the plan.

Fifty-four members of the 60-nation Assembly voted on a final roll call for the resolution which reached the Assembly floor after weeks of debate.

The five Soviet Bloc countries, fighting bitterly to the end against the solid free world front, cast the only negative votes. Nationalist China abstained on the grounds that the resolution would not be effective.

Red Reaction Awaited

Although the Communists already have rejected the resolution, some U. N. leaders hoped for a change of mind in Peiping and Pyongyang. The action today closes the first chapter of the Korean case in the seventh Assembly and there is expected to be a lull now until the Communists react.

Delegates feel that such reaction will not come in time for fresh decisions here by the New Year.

They are ready to suspend action until President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower takes office in Washington Jan. 20 and sends a new delegation to the Assembly reopening in February.

U. S. Ambassador Ernest A. Gross told the Assembly the resolution shows the way to peace.

Communists On Spot

Gross said the people of the United States are united with other peoples of the world in a prayer that the Communists will accept the proposal. If they do not, he said, "it will make clear to all the world that the Communists do not want a peace in Korea acceptable to the conscience of civilized men. This will be a disheartening conclusion, but if we are compelled to reach it, we shall do so with courage and determination."

The resolution would establish a four-country repatriation commission, made up of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Switzerland. This commission would handle the repatriation of all prisoners and the resolution states that force will not be used to send the prisoners home or detain them. It provides for an umpire to vote in case of a deadlock by the commission. At the end of 90 days after an armistice the commission would turn over to a projected political conference on Korea the prisoners not yet repatriated. At the end of 30 days more the conference would turn over to the U. N. all prisoners remaining unrepatriated or not disposed of otherwise.

Novelist Blasts "Girlie" Mags

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — Novelist Margaret Culkin Banning said today about two billion "girlie" magazines are sold annually on U. S. newsstands and serve "no purpose except pictorial prostitution."

Testifying before a special House inquiry committee, the 61-year-old writer said that of 1,231 magazines currently being published, all but about 100 are classified as "girlies." She denounced them as "vicious and provocative."

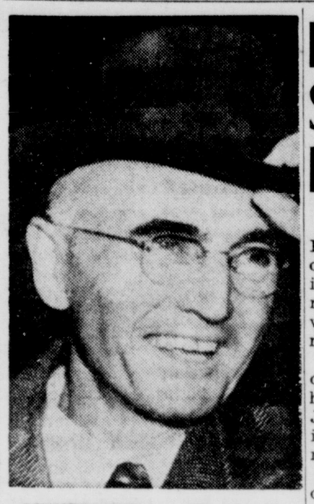

At the outset, committee members qualified Mrs. Banning as an expert witness because of her research for an article entitled "Filth on the Newsstands," published in the October issue of Reader's Digest.

The House group, headed by Rep. Ezekiel Gathings (D-Ark), is making a broad study of alleged salacious literature — including books, magazines and so-called comic booklets dealing with sex, crime and horror.

Mrs. Banning, a graduate of Vassar College, told the lawmakers she found that many buyers of "girlie" magazines surreptitiously remove the covers before taking them home.

"The newsstands in America carry a display of sex provocation to be found nowhere else in the world," she said. "These magazines are not for fun, nor play, nor beauty, but simply issued for straight provocation."

Dulles Indicates State Department Inquiry Planned

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—John Foster Dulles, the next secretary of state, today projected a thorough investigation of the State Department but declared that "loyal servants of o ur government have nothing to fear."

An indication of what may be one of Dulles' first actions when he takes over the State Department Jan. 20 came in a statement he issued after a meeting with Secretary Dean Acheson.

Obviously aware of the impact of long—sustained Republican criticism on career diplomats and other workers whose boss he will be, Dulles declared the foreign service "will be protected" by the Eisenhower administration "insofar as it is sound and free of corruption."

Many Angles To Be Studied

"There are, of course, many angles that need to be looked into and will be looked into very thoroughly," he said. "But the loyal servants of our government have nothing to fear."

The reference to "corruption" and to the "angles" that will be thoroughly studied left no doubt that Dulles plans to rake over the department and foreign service from top to bottom. Some authorities believe that one of his first and most pressing tasks, aside from reinforcing the morale of the thousands who will work under him, will be to try to restore public confidence in the department to whatever extent it has been destroyed.

Wholesale Shakeup Expected

Republican critics have assailed the department as a hotbed of Communists or persons wtih Red leanings, have attacked many of its policies, and have questioned the adequacy of its leaders. A wholesale shakeup of top personnel here and of U. S. missions abroad is expected under the new administration.

Dulles said he discussed with Acheson today the problems of transition which will be involved in handing the responsibility over foreign policy from a Democratic to a Republican administration.

Monetary Fund Official Fired

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The House Judiciary subcommittee has launched an investigation into reports that the state and justice Departments interfered with a New York grand jury's search for alleged American Reds in the United Nations Organization.

As Chairman Chelf (D-Ky) announced the inquiry was underway, the International Monetary Fund disclosed that Frank Coe, its $15,500-a-year secretary, has been fired after refusing to tell Senate investigators whether he was ever a Communist or a wartime spy.

The Monetary Fund, set up to stabilize currencies, has contractual relations with U. N. but is not a part of U. N.

Chelf and Rep. Keating (R-NY), another member of the Judiciary group, said an investigator already was on the way to New York to look into "serious charges of delay, interference and hampering" which they said had been made against the Justice Department by members of the federal grand jury.

State Dept. Denial Issued

One of the jurors, Max Zimmerman, told reporters in New York yesterday the jury "had reasons to suspect" that the State Department, working through the Justice Department, had started to exert pressure to delay or pigeon-hole its report on conditions inside the U. N.

Speaking for the State Department, Press Officer Michael McDermott said today it had nothing whatever to do with any such attempt.

The grand jury warned the American people in its report that any "overwhelmingly" large group of disloyal United States citizens has infiltrated the U. N.

"Almost without exception these same subversive employes with the United Nations were formerly employed in various departments of our own federal government," the jury reported.

Part Of "Planned Pattern"

It appeared, the jury said, that so many disloyal Americans in key U. N. positions was not coincidental, but part of "a definite, planned pattern."

Coe's ouster as secretary of the International Monetary Fund followed his appearance before a Senate Internal Security subcommittee headed by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev). The McCarran group also has been investigating American employes of the U. N.

Jay Reid, public relations officer for the fund, said Ivar Rooth, the Swedish banker who is manager of the fund, asked for Coe's resignation two days after Coe refused to tell the McCarran committee whether he belonged to a spy ring during World War II.

Slansky, 10 Other Onetime Czech Leaders Hanged

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 3 (AP)—Rudolf Slansky, former Communist boss of Czechoslovakia, and Vlado Clementis, its former foreign minister, were hanged in Prague today with nine other fallen party leaders. They were judged "Zionist, Trotskyite" enemies of Stalinism.

The 11, eight of them Jews, were sentenced last Thursday in a mass show trial of 14 top Communists who confessed in the accustomed wooden manner to all sorts of crimes against Czechoslovakia, communism and the Soviet Union. Three others, all Jewish, got life imprisonment.

The swiftness with which the executions were carried out hinted that the savage purge of Czechoslovak Communist ranks was beginning. At the same time there were many signs that communism's 1952 purge was to hit all the satellite Communist nations and perhaps many persons inside the Soviet Union itself.

The Prague radio announced the executions were carried out at grim Pankrac Prison.

Slansky, former Kremlin favorite installed by Moscow in 1945 as secretary general boss of the Czechoslovak Communist Party, was one of the chief architects of the February, 1948, coup which put the Communists in power.

His fall appeared to stem from a struggle for power with President Klement Gottwald, who decorated him with a high order on Slansky's 50th birthday in July, 1951, for services to Moscow and communism.

Clementis, former foreign minister and former Czech chief delegate to the United Nations, sat out World War II in London instead of in Moscow, his major mistake. When he was arrested in the spring of 1950, he was accused of "losing faith in Stalin."

Three Of Nine Convict Soldiers Recaptured

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP) — State police today announced the arrest of three of the nine convict GIs who escaped Saturday from the New Cumberland Military Barracks.

The officers identified the men as Hilton R. Davis, 20, of Natick, Mass.; Gerald Brown, 22, of Philipsburg, Pa., and Paul A. Swegman, 21, of Indianapolis.

The men were arrested in a car stolen from George E. Schweitzer of Dillsburg RD 2, Pa., about 10 miles from the New Cumberland barracks.

State police said all three are serving five-year terms for larceny in Germany while stationed there with the American occupation forces.

200 POWs Raid Victims

TOKYO, Dec. 3 (AP) — The Peiping radio asserted tonight more than 200 United Nations prisoners of war were killed this year in nine Allied aerial attacks on North Korean POW camps.

Prison Escapee Gives Self Up

CLARKSBURG, Pa., Dec. 3 (INS) — Leo Stiles, one of eight convicts who escaped last Sunday from the Western Pennsylvania Penitentiary, surrendered tonight to a Clarksburg garage operator, explaining: "I'm whipped, cold and hungry."

Stiles was taken into custody by state police after giving himself up to Garage Operator Carl Fleming. His arrest cut to four the number of convicts still at large.

The fugitive, who was serving two to four years for forgery and burglary, said he separated from the rest of the desperadoes the day of the break and since had walked miles through fields and along back roads, sleeping at nights in barns.

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 3 (AP) —The second of two cars believed to have been used by four escaped convicts from a Pennsylvania prison was found today on a lightly traveled South Wheeling street.

Inside the 1947-model convertible were a few shotgun and .32 caliber pistol shells.

The other car was found in another section of Wheeling yesterday.

Misleading Word

Pentagon Drops "Casualty" From Korean War Reports

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Pentagon today dropped the word "casualty" from its weekly report of wounds and fatalities incurred in the Korean War.

A spokesman said the word is misleading, that it gives people the impression everyone listed as a casualty has been killed or maimed.

At the same time, the Defense Department ended a practice begun in August, 1950, of reporting the grand total of all U. S. casualties in the Korean War.

The action apparently resulted from Republican emphasis during the recent campaign on the Korean War and its mounting casualties.

Last Summer Pentagon officials told reporters they received instructions to do something about explaining that there was a difference between "casualties" and deaths.

Military officials at that time cautioned against changing the casualty reporting system in the middle of the war and in the midst of a political campaign. That advice was followed.

The question was raised again as soon as the election was over, and today's report on deaths and wounds marked the first departure from a practice which went all the way through World War II.

The figures as of today's report are as follows: Killed in action, 20,004; wounded, 94,367; missing, 13,012—total, 127,383.

Adlai Welcomed To White House

President Truman greets a smiling Gov. Adlai Stevenson at the White House last night. Stevenson, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for president, will be the guest of the Trumans at a formal dinner tonight for members of the President's Cabinet.

Stevenson, President 'Discuss Demo Party'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson came to Washington tonight to "discuss the Democratic Party" with President Truman.

That was about all the defeated presidential nominee would say about plans for his two nights and a full day as a White House guest, but there appeared no doubt that the big subject for talks with Truman and other party bigwigs was planning for a Democratic comeback.

Flying in from Atlantic City where he had attended memorial services for Philip Murray, late president of the CIO and one of his staunchest supporters in the recent campaign, Stevenson's commercial plane was about an hour late.

Adlai Greeted By 200

A crowd of some 200, largely made up of women and children, waited that hour in dark, chilly weather to shout a greeting. There was a chant of "We want Adlai" when the plane landed. Some shouted "Stevenson in '56" and there were banners reading "Retrieve with Steve."

Stevenson, who has had little to say about his own plans since he lost the election to Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower, left the welcoming group guessing. As he boarded a White House car on the way to the executive mansion he told them:

"I have only this to say aside from my gratitude. I'm not coming back for four years." There was no elaboration to clear up whether he meant he was pulling out of national capital affairs for that long, which would suggest an inactive political role for the present.

Stevenson To Attend Dinner

"I really don't know," Stevenson said. "I came at the invitation of President Truman. I suppose we're going to discuss the Democratic Party and have a little farewell dinner."

The latter reference was to Truman's last dinner for his Cabinet which Stevenson will attend tomorrow night.

At the White House the President, bareheaded and smiling broadly, met the governor with a hearty handshake on the stoop of the north portico.

Skelton Says He, Wife Plan Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3 (AP) — Red Skelton says he and his second wife Georgia are getting a divorce although "I'm so much in love it's pitiful."

"But she doesn't want to be in love," Red added sadly. ". . . I can't take it any longer.

"All I want out of life is to go in and talk to my kids. I do not want my wife to lock her door."

He had been incommunicado for several hours today in a Beverly Hills hotel suite. Finally, a phone call reached the suite. The garrulous Red's conversation was interrupted frequently. Advisers who had tried to keep him from saying anything quickly jumped in with a statement that the comic's views had been voiced "in haste." There will be no divorce, they added, "at the moment."

Stevenson Urges CIO To Take GOP Victory In Stride

ATLANTIC CITY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson today led CIO conventional memorial services for the late CIO President Philip Murray as a behind-scenes battle raged in the choosing of Murray's successor.

The Illinois governor, recent Democratic loser in the election for the nation's presidency, took occasion in his speech to urge organized labor to act with greater future responsibility to the country.

GOP Victory Not "Disaster"

Cautioning the CIO not to regard the Republican victory as any sort of "disaster" or necessarily a misfortune, Stevenson said labor ought to continue working toward greater gains. He said labor has won its battle for recognition and status and now is entering a new period of established acceptance in America.

"The bigger job of the future," he said, "is the proper exercise of organized labor's vast responsibility, not just to the working man but to the country. Some of the attitudes, habits of thought and methods of the past are no longer relevant."

Feud May Be Ironed Out

In the political scuffling in convention hotel corridors on the matter of selecting Murray's successor, 45-year-old Walter Reuther, president of the CIO's big auto workers union, was still regarded as a virtual cinch for the job.

Allan S. Haywood, the CIO's executive vice president, told newsmen he still intends to be nominated as a candidate for the CIO presidency and force a convention roll call tomorrow between him and Reuther.

At the same time Haywood noted that meetings were being held continuously in efforts to iron out the feud.

It was widely expected a deal may be negotiated giving Haywood forces favors in exchange for the 64-year-old veteran union leader's withdrawal of the opposition to Reuther.

SEAT PLEASANT, Md., Dec. 3 (AP)—"The one with the gun said 'This is a holdup' and I said 'The hell it is! Be damned if you're going to do any holdup in here.' And then I just punched everybody in sight."

With those words 72-year-old Dr. Zadoc M. Brady told today of an unsuccessful attempt by two youths to hold up his office last night.

Dr. Brady has been practicing madicine for 45 years in Seat Pleasant.

Friends Fight Hotel Gun Battle

GRUNDY, Va., Dec. 3 (AP)—Two friends, both prominent in their own towns, fought a 10-shot gun battle while standing within six paces of each other in a hotel room here, Sheriff Ishmael Fletcher said today.

The sheriff said last night's fight, which wounded both men, apparently resulted from an argument over an increase in the hotel's room rent. Each man claims the other fired first, the sheriff said.

The close-quarter gun battle sent T. T. Boyd, 42, operator of the Island Inn here, to a Grundy hospital, where he is in "very serious" condition with bullet wounds in the body.

Hospitalized in his home town of Bluefield, W. Va., is William W. Hoskins, 40, prominent wholesale company salesman who suffered three mutilated fingers on his right hand and one on his left hand.

Fletcher said five shells from each man's gun were found in the hotel room where Hoskins had been staying.

Deadline Passes

Eastern Airlines Removes Strikers From Its Payroll

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP) — Eastern Airlines said tonight it has removed striking flight engineers from its payroll.

Members of the AFL Flight Engineers International Association have been striking against the company for more pay.

The company's action against the strikers followed its charge that the strike is illegal. It had warned only today that the engineers would lose their jobs if they didn't return to work.

But, in reply to the warning, Union President William Kent said the three-day-old strike would continue.

Tonight Eastern's vice president in charge of operations, S. L. Shannon, wrote all employes that "only a very few men reported" back to work before the deadline set by the firm.

Jack Robertson, president of the Miami chapter of the AFL Flight Engineers International Association, said:

"We don't believe the company can fire us, we are not resigning and none of us is planning to go back to work."

Wage Board Is Overruled By President

Doesn't Want Coal Crisis Facing Ike

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — President Truman today gave the nation's soft coal miners a $1.90 daily wage increase because, he said, he does not want President-elect Eisenhower to have a coal strike crisis on his hands when he takes office.

Truman, in approving the full $1.90 which John L. Lewis negotiated with the industry, overruled the Wage Stabilization Board, the Economic Stabilization Agency and Defense Production Chief Henry H. Fowler.

The wage board had held that any more than $1.50 would "irreparably damage" the program to control inflation. The other high stabilization officials sided with the board.

But Truman declared he was not willing to take an action which would confront his successor with a big strike emergency. Therefore he approved the full $1.90 for the 375,000 soft coal miners.

Decision Reached Week Ago

The President's decision, reached one week ago, was announced by Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam who said:

"This is not the decision I would have made. It is not the decision I would have recommended."

But Putnam told newsmen he would not resign over the disagreement in handling the case and he was certain that at least three of four public members of the wage board would also stay on the job.

Some of the board's public members told newsmen privately some time ago that they intended to resign if the government rejected the board's decision that a $1.50 rise was all that could be allowed under the government's anti-inflation program.

Lewis, Industry Appealed

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and the industry jointly appealed the board's decision to Putnam and the matter then went to the White House. Lewis and the industry had agreed on a $1.90 rise but under wage-price controls it could not be put into effect without governmental approval.

Truman's decision that the miners should have the $1.90 means higher price ceilings for many varieties of soft coal but probably not for all. Most soft coal has been selling well under existing ceiling prices and the higher wage costs can be absorbed for some varieties within present ceilings.

Actual prices, however, are expected to go up. Truman estimated the additional cost of producing coal will be "perhaps five or six cents a ton."

The $1.50 allowed by the WSB has been paid since last Oct. 1, the date the new Lewis-industry contract was effective. Today's decision granting the full increase means that miners will receive the additional 40 cents a day as of Oct. 1 and raises their basic minimum daily wage to $18.25.

Probe Of Tanker Deals Ordered

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Atty-Gen. McGranery disclosed late today that he has ordered a grand jury inquiry into the multimillion-dollar deals in surplus U. S. tankers after World War II.

A Senate subcommittee made a long investigation last winter of these deals.

It turned a spotlight on transactions involving numerous prominent persons, including former Democratic Congressman Joseph E. Casey of Massachusetts and one-time government "Cleanup Man" Newbold Morris of New York City.

The committee said in a formal report that the deals involved profit-grabbing, tax avoidance and a network of international schemes designed to place U. S. ships in alien hands.

The Senate group said the evidence indicated that a group headed by Casey got 3¼ million dollars return on one deal in which they put only $101,000.

State police said all three are serving five-year terms for larceny in Germany while stationed there with the American occupation forces.

200 POWs Raid Victims

TOKYO, Dec. 3 (AP) — The Peiping radio asserted tonight more than 200 United Nations prisoners of war were killed this year in nine Allied aerial attacks on North Korean POW camps.

Misleading Word

Pentagon Drops "Casualty" From Korean War Reports

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Pentagon today dropped the word "casualty" from its weekly report of wounds and fatalities incurred in the Korean War.

A spokesman said the word is misleading, that it gives people the impression everyone listed as a casualty has been killed or maimed.

At the same time, the Defense Department ended a practice begun in August, 1950, of reporting the grand total of all U. S. casualties in the Korean War.

The action apparently resulted from Republican emphasis during the recent campaign on the Korean War and its mounting casualties.

Last Summer Pentagon officials told reporters they received instructions to do something about explaining that there was a difference between "casualties" and deaths.

Military officials at that time cautioned against changing the casualty reporting system in the middle of the war and in the midst of a political campaign. That advice was followed.

The question was raised again as soon as the election was over, and today's report on deaths and wounds marked the first departure from a practice which went all the way through World War II.

The figures as of today's report are as follows: Killed in action, 20,004; wounded, 94,367; missing, 13,012—total, 127,383.

Prison Escapee Gives Self Up

CLARKSBURG, Pa., Dec. 3 (INS) — Leo Stiles, one of eight convicts who escaped last Sunday from the Western Pennsylvania Penitentiary, surrendered tonight to a Clarksburg garage operator, explaining: "I'm whipped, cold and hungry."

Stiles was taken into custody by state police after giving himself up to Garage Operator Carl Fleming. His arrest cut to four the number of convicts still at large.

The fugitive, who was serving two to four years for forgery and burglary, said he separated from the rest of the desperadoes the day of the break and since had walked miles through fields and along back roads, sleeping at nights in barns.

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 3 (AP) —The second of two cars believed to have been used by four escaped convicts from a Pennsylvania prison was found today on a lightly traveled South Wheeling street.

Inside the 1947-model convertible were a few shotgun and .32 caliber pistol shells.

The other car was found in another section of Wheeling yesterday.

Lie Names New Aide

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 3 (AP) — U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie today appointed Constantin Stavropoulos of Greece as his chief legal counsel to succeed Abraham H. Feller, who committed suicide Nov. 13.

Adlai Welcomed To White House

President Truman greets a smiling Gov. Adlai Stevenson at the White House last night. Stevenson, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for president, will be the guest of the Trumans at a formal dinner tonight for members of the President's Cabinet.

Stevenson, President 'Discuss Demo Party'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson came to Washington tonight to "discuss the Democratic Party" with President Truman.

That was about all the defeated presidential nominee would say about plans for his two nights and a full day as a White House guest, but there appeared no doubt that the big subject for talks with Truman and other party bigwigs was planning for a Democratic comeback.

Flying in from Atlantic City where he had attended memorial services for Philip Murray, late president of the CIO and one of his staunchest supporters in the recent campaign, Stevenson's commercial plane was about an hour late.

Adlai Greeted By 200

A crowd of some 200, largely made up of women and children, waited that hour in dark, chilly weather to shout a greeting. There was a chant of "We want Adlai" when the plane landed. Some shouted "Stevenson in '56" and there were banners reading "Retrieve with Steve."

Stevenson, who has had little to say about his own plans since he lost the election to Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower, left the welcoming group guessing. As he boarded a White House car on the way to the executive mansion he told them:

"I have only this to say aside from my gratitude. I'm not coming back for four years." There was no elaboration to clear up whether he meant he was pulling out of national capital affairs for that long, which would suggest an inactive political role for the present.

Stevenson To Attend Dinner

"I really don't know," Stevenson said. "I came at the invitation of President Truman. I suppose we're going to discuss the Democratic Party and have a little farewell dinner."

The latter reference was to Truman's last dinner for his Cabinet which Stevenson will attend tomorrow night.

At the White House the President, bareheaded and smiling broadly, met the governor with a hearty handshake on the stoop of the north portico.

Skelton Says He, Wife Plan Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3 (AP) — Red Skelton says he and his second wife Georgia are getting a divorce although "I'm so much in love it's pitiful."

"But she doesn't want to be in love," Red added sadly.". . . I can't take it any longer.

"All I want out of life is to go in and talk to my kids. I do not want my wife to lock her door."

He had been incommunicado for several hours today in a Beverly Hills hotel suite. Finally, a phone call reached the suite. The garrulous Red's conversation was interrupted frequently. Advisers who had tried to keep him from saying anything quickly jumped in with a statement that the comic's views had been voiced "in haste." There will be no divorce, they added, "at the moment."

72-Year-Old Doc Routs Robbers

SEAT PLEASANT, Md., Dec. 3 (AP)—"The one with the gun said 'This is a holdup' and I said 'The hell it is! Be damned if you're going to do any holdup in here.' And then I just punched everybody in sight."

With those words 72-year-old Dr. Zadoc M. Brady told today of an unsuccessful attempt by two youths to hold up his office last night.

Dr. Brady has been practicing madicine for 45 years in Seat Pleasant.

Friends Fight Hotel Gun Battle

GRUNDY, Va., Dec. 3 (AP)—Two friends, both prominent in their own towns, fought a 10-shot gun battle while standing within six paces of each other in a hotel room here, Sheriff Ishmael Fletcher said today.

The sheriff said last night's fight, which wounded both men, apparently resulted from an argument over an increase in the hotel's room rent. Each man claims the other fired first, the sheriff said.

The close-quarter gun battle sent T. T. Boyd, 42, operator of the Island Inn here, to a Grundy hospital, where he is in "very serious" condition with bullet wounds in the body.

Hospitalized in his home town of Bluefield, W. Va., is William W. Hoskins, 40, prominent wholesale company salesman who suffered three mutilated fingers on his right hand and one on his left hand.

Fletcher said five shells from each man's gun were found in the hotel room where Hoskins had been staying.

Stevenson Urges CIO To Take GOP Victory In Stride

ATLANTIC CITY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson today led CIO conventional memorial services for the late CIO President Philip Murray as a behind-scenes battle raged in the choosing of Murray's successor.

The Illinois governor, recent Democratic loser in the election for the nation's presidency, took occasion in his speech to urge organized labor to act with greater future responsibility to the country.

GOP Victory Not "Disaster"

Cautioning the CIO not to regard the Republican victory as any sort of "disaster" or necessarily a misfortune, Stevenson said labor ought to continue working toward greater gains. He said labor has won its battle for recognition and status and now is entering a new period of established acceptance in America.

"The bigger job of the future," he said, "is the proper exercise of organized labor's vast responsibility, not just to the working man but to the country. Some of the attitudes, habits of thought and methods of the past are no longer relevant."

Feud May Be Ironed Out

In the political scuffling in convention hotel corridors on the matter of selecting Murray's successor, 45-year-old Walter Reuther, president of the CIO's big auto workers union, was still regarded as a virtual cinch for the job.

Allan S. Haywood, the CIO's executive vice president, told newsmen he still intends to be nominated as a candidate for the CIO presidency and force a convention roll call tomorrow between him and Reuther.

At the same time Haywood noted that meetings were being held continuously in efforts to iron out the feud.

It was widely expected a deal may be negotiated giving Haywood forces favors in exchange for the 64-year-old veteran union leader's withdrawal of the opposition to Reuther.

Deadline Passes

Eastern Airlines Removes Strikers From Its Payroll

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP) — Eastern Airlines said tonight it has removed striking flight engineers from its payroll.

Members of the AFL Flight Engineers International Association have been striking against the company for more pay.

The company's action against the strikers followed its charge that the strike is illegal. It had warned only today that the engineers would lose their jobs if they didn't return to work.

But, in reply to the warning, Union President William Kent said the three-day-old strike would continue.

Tonight Eastern's vice president in charge of operations, S. L. Shannon, wrote all employes that "only a very few men reported" back to work before the deadline set by the firm.

Jack Robertson, president of the Miami chapter of the AFL Flight Engineers International Association, said:

"We don't believe the company can fire us, we are not resigning and none of us is planning to go back to work."

Wage Board Is Overruled By President

Doesn't Want Coal Crisis Facing Ike

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — President Truman today gave the nation's soft coal miners a $1.90 daily wage increase because, he said, he does not want President-elect Eisenhower to have a coal strike crisis on his hands when he takes office.

Truman, in approving the full $1.90 which John L. Lewis negotiated with the industry, overruled the Wage Stabilization Board, the Economic Stabilization Agency and Defense Production Chief Henry H. Fowler.

The wage board had held that any more than $1.50 would "irreparably damage" the program to control inflation. The other high stabilization officials sided with the board.

But Truman declared he was not willing to take an action which would confront his successor with a big strike emergency. Therefore he approved the full $1.90 for the 375,000 soft coal miners.

Decision Reached Week Ago

The President's decision, reached one week ago, was announced by Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam who said:

"This is not the decision I would have made. It is not the decision I would have recommended."

But Putnam told newsmen he would not resign over the disagreement in handling the case and he was certain that at least three of four public members of the wage board would also stay on the job.

Some of the board's public members told newsmen privately some time ago that they intended to resign if the government rejected the board's decision that a $1.50 rise was all that could be allowed under the government's anti-inflation program.

Lewis, Industry Appealed

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and the industry jointly appealed the board's decision to Putnam and the matter then went to the White House. Lewis and the industry had agreed on a $1.90 rise but under wage-price controls it could not be put into effect without governmental approval.

Truman's decision that the miners should have the $1.90 means higher price ceilings for many varieties of soft coal but probably not for all. Most soft coal has been selling well under existing ceiling prices and the higher wage costs can be absorbed for some varieties within present ceilings.

Actual prices, however, are expected to go up. Truman estimated the additional cost of producing coal will be "perhaps five or six cents a ton."

The $1.50 allowed by the WSB has been paid since last Oct. 1, the date the new Lewis-industry contract was effective. Today's decision granting the full increase means that miners will receive the additional 40 cents a day as of Oct. 1 and raises their basic minimum daily wage to $18.25.

Probe Of Tanker Deals Ordered

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Atty-Gen. McGranery disclosed late today that he has ordered a grand jury inquiry into the multimillion-dollar deals in surplus U. S. tankers after World War II.

A Senate subcommittee made a long investigation last winter of these deals.

It turned a spotlight on transactions involving numerous prominent persons, including former Democratic Congressman Joseph E. Casey of Massachusetts and one-time government "Cleanup Man" Newbold Morris of New York City.

The committee said in a formal report that the deals involved profit-grabbing, tax avoidance and a network of international schemes designed to place U. S. ships in alien hands.

The Senate group said the evidence indicated that a group headed by Casey got 3¼ million dollars return on one deal in which they put only $101,000.

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Dec. 3 (AP) — Thirty airplanes searched today for an Air Force C-47 transport missing since Monday night with 13 men aboard and presumed to have crashed in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Firms Paid Dock Union Leaders For "Good Will"

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Stevedoring firms on New York's waterfront were reported today to have paid thousands of dollars to keep AFL longshore leaders at their "beck and call," or as "gratuities" for their "good will." Many payments were secret.

"It was an established practice in the business," elderly, white-haired Ruth M. Kennedy told a state crime commission. She is secretary-treasurer of Daniels and Kennedy, Inc.

Her firm, testimony showed, paid $7,500 in five years to Joseph P. Ryan alone. He is president of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association, whose members work the world's biggest waterfront.

Testimony also was introduced that firms brought known thugs onto their piers to strongarm Ryan's longshoremen into line.

In a reverse case, according to committee testimony, Tony Anastasio, of a notorious waterfront family, muscled onto the piers by means of a strike which browbeat the pier operators into submission.

"He had the backing of the entire ILA officers," a company official was quoted as saying.

Excessive loading charges and a make-work pier policy, the commission heard, is slowly strangling the vast port of New York, driving away business by the shipload.

ROK Troops Retake Vital Pinpoint Hill

SEOUL, Thursday, Dec. 4 (AP) — Hard-fighting South Koreans recaptured vital Pinpoint Hill on the Central Korean Front in bitter hand-to-hand combat Wednesday—the coldest day of a new winter.

In the air, the Fifth Air Force reported U. S. Sabre jet pilots shot down two Communist MIG-15 jet fighters high over Northwest Korea.

The Communists had taken Pinpoint, the crest of Sniper Ridge, eight hours earlier in an attack which swept up the icy slopes in one-above-zero weather.

After the Koreans cleaned out the enemy from the bunkers, the Communists staged a counterattack at 9:15 p. m., but withdrew after 15 minutes.

New Cars Salvaged After Barge Sinks

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Dec. 3 (INS) — Workers began salvage operations today on a barge which sank in the Ohio River south of Evansville while loaded with 200 automobiles worth an estimated $400,000.

A low river level enabled workers to remove 60 cars from the top three decks, which remained above water.

The autos are being transferred to another barge. It is expected to be several days before the sunken barge is raised.

Road Drainage Case Settled Out Of Court

An equity suit against the State Roads Commission involving poor drainage on the Westernport-McCoole Road was settled shortly after noon yesterday after the complainant's case had been heard by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Harry V. Reeves Sr., had sought a mandatory injunction compelling the State Roads Commission to construct a culvert to drain water in front of his property which fronts 260 feet along State Route 126. His attorneys were Horace P. Whitworth Sr., and Horace P. Whitworth Jr. Thomas B. Finan, this city and Andrew W. Starratt Jr., of Baltimore were counsel for the State Roads Commission.

Reds Claim Ike Has 'IOU' To End War Peaceably

MOSCOW, Dec. 3 (AP) — The English language periodical The News dwelt at great length today on President-elect Eisenhower's Korean trip.

The magazine said Eisenhower promised to end the Korean War by peaceful means. It said he had committed himself to go to Korea and study on the spot how to put an end to the war with speed and honor. It added:

"The general, however, did not specify just how he intended to go about putting an end to the war, and apprehensions on this score are all the more legitimate as he has shown he has no use for the truce talks in Korea. In a speech at San Francisco, for instance, he went out of his way to denounce them.

"Notwithstanding this, the Republican Party gave an IOU to end the war in Korea by peaceful means. Whether this IOU will be honored, whether the promise made to the American people will be kept, remains to be seen."

The News said Eisenhower's Gary,Ind., speech on Sept. 9 outlined a foreign policy "of still greater American aggressiveness on the world scene and a still larger war machine."

Legislators Told Public Got Fed Up With Politics On Air

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Politicians talked too much in the recent political campaign — or else they weren't good enough at it — a radio-television industry spokesman suggested today.

He said "people in droves" were found to be turning off "what we charitably call campaign oratory."

And that was bad even for the stations and networks, added Ralph W. Hardy, director of government relations for the National Association of radio and television broadcasters.

The stations kept right on getting their money, Hardy explained to a special House committee investigating campaign spending. But much of the time regular commercial programs had been shoved off the air to make way for the politics. And once the listener snaps that cutoff button "with a vengeance" it's a hard job to get him back again, Hardy said.

Hardy didn't go so far as to suggest the politicians preempt less air time. But he did express the hope that they will learn to "utilize more skillfully" the radio-TV periods they buy or obtain otherwise.

Johnson To Graduate From Army Jet School

Airman 2/C James T. Johnson III, son of Dr. and Mrs. James T. Johnson Jr., 206 Washington Street, will complete jet school in Amarillo, Tex. today.

He and another airman, Foster W. Anderson, of Minnesota are now in charge of the Amarillo Air Base drill team which has exhibited perfect marching skill at various events in Texas.

Children Who Found Half-Million Rewarded

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 3 (AP) — A brother and sister were awarded $100 each in defense bonds today for recovering half a million dollars in non-cashable checks stolen from a Railway Express truck.

Elliott Nadeau, 12, and his sister Geraldine, 9, found the checks in three canvas bags while playing in a yard.

The checks apparently were abandoned when the thief found he could not cash them. They were all endorsed "for deposit only."

He's On The Spot

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 3 (AP)—Clayton Price, clerk of Dungannon Township, is on the spot.

As the township's duly constituted official, Price may be called upon to cast the deciding vote for a second member of the school board. One of the two contestants tied for the position is his wife.

He's hoping a recount may save him from a difficult decision.

The W&J student is in the Franklin Literary Society, Intercollegiate Conference on Government, Buskin Club, and Delta Tau Delta national fraternity. A major in English, he is a 1950 graduate of Allegany High School.

French And Vietminh In Showdown Battle

HANOI, Indochina, Dec. 3 (AP)—Indochina's biggest battle is being fought at close range around the village of Na San.

Thousands of French Union troops, besieged by double their number of the Communist-led Vietminh, have their backs to the wall.

The wall in this case is an air strip. Two weeks ago Na San, 117 miles west of Hanoi, was just a pinpoint on the military maps of Northwest Indochina. Today it represents France's hope and determination to check Communist encroachment westward from the upper Red River.

If Na San falls, the French survivors must drop back to the French-held Red River delta. Some might be flown out. Others would have to try a fighting retreat aground.

Cumberland," Keegan concluded. "In order to do that, we must have something to attract it and I am certain that every city official will do all that can be done along that line. However, our finances must be kept in such shape that a high tax rate will not be the means of discouraging new businesses and to that end I shall devote my best efforts."

At the conclusion of the discussions, J. Kenneth Morgan, Jaycee president, asked the members for questions. One member asked Commissioner Long whether well-trained policemen might be grabbed up by industry in view of the low salaries paid city policemen. Long said he hoped the salary situation could be improved but realized that the danger of loss of good men to industry would continue.

William Scott, IV, asked the final question. Noting that the contract of Smoke Engineer George M. Hitchcock is soon to expire, he asked whether the renewal had been discussed by Mayor Eves and the Commissioners.

Mayor Eves said it had not been discussed.

is not for such things that men will die. But men will die—men are dying today in Korea—for things so deep within them that they cannot even put them in words. And those are the things that will win this fight, if only we can make America realize that these deep things are at stake."

du Pont went on with an example of when Canada started its great wheat campaign during the shortage of World War I. When Canada first began its drive, he said, its leaders advertised "join our great wheat campaign—high pay—short hours — good housing." However the drive failed.

Then the leaders realized they had to make a confession—and they did. "We have a confession," they said, "we need wheat, the pay is low, the hours are long, the work is hard and the housing is lousy." From their honesty they received 15 per cent more volunteers than they needed," du Pont said.

Action Louder Than Words

"American business men," he said, "must do their part in this struggle for freedom, over and above their enormous contributions in the fields of production and sales, and they must do it with deeds as well as words.

"I know there was a time," he said, "when some American business was about as young and fresh and as selfish and cruel as a high-school sophomore often is. But times have changed and I resent being judged today entirely on what we were many years ago.

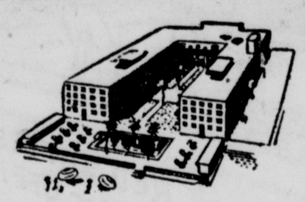

"The vast majority of American business has grown up to be a good and valuable citizen. And I can report to you with confidence that most large and small business men are out to serve their communities and the nation. The trend is getting stronger every day.

"We have been like a piano player with one hand in the air and just playing the bass on the keyboard," he continued. "We need now to play the upper part of our emotional keyboard. Let us not deny the finer side—we can improve ourselves and put emphasis on high ability and statesmanship.

"But let us not do these things for ourselves, but for our children here and those sad people over there who lost the freedom we still, thank God, have here."

For College Support

Fully 1,500 private institutions of higher learning, particularly liberal arts colleges and medical schools, are in sore straits for lack of money. Inflation has cut the buying power of their fixed income.

Tuition has been increased almost to the saturation point. High taxes have dried up potential sources of endowment, and pledges of annual support by alumni have not alone been sufficient for safe reliance. These institutions need $250,000,000 more annually for operating expenses. Where are they to get it?

For three years the Commission on Financing Higher Education, consisting of eight leading educators and four distinguished laymen, has been wrestling with this problem in a nation-wide survey at the instance of the Association of American Universities and with the support of grants of $400,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation and $50,000 from the Carnegie Corporation.

The commission has come to two major conclusions:

That "free" colleges and universities must not seek federal aid, for that could result in ultimate uniformity and government control.

That for a new and adequate source of income they must look to industry, which is a beneficiary both of professional and of liberal arts training.

Says the report:

"Under today's conditions industry is the last untapped source to which educators may look—except government. Business leaders and educators alike fear further dependence on government. Business and education have the same interest in maintaining freedom and each may lose it unless the other retains it."

For scholarships, fellowships, research and operating grants in education and basic research the federal government in 1950, the report points out, expended $468,000,000, which was 28 per cent of the entire higher educational income that year. There are those—among them are some educators—who would like to see a "liberal" extension of federal aid.

Not so this 12-man commission that has gone over the entire field. Besides industrial contributions, it urges alumni, labor unions, church groups and service clubs to contribute.

As to the share industry should bear in the cost of higher education, the commission suggests three per cent of net income before taxation, or approximately $325,000,000 a year. Corporate gifts to charity have "increased nearly tenfold, since the income tax laws have permitted the deduction of these gifts"—but higher education has received only a minor part.

Such contributions, of course, would have to be voluntary. Tax-compelled, it would be a case of out of the frying pan into the governmental fire the commission so deplores.

As Koreans Wait

Seoul is decking itself out in its pitiful best to greet an expected visitor. No one can say for sure that General Eisenhower will include the war-ravaged capital in his Korean itinerary and those who are responsible for his safety might forbid it. But if he does go there, he will get the warmest welcome the chief city of Korea can give an American President-elect.

This enthusiastic activity in Seoul is one indication of how South Koreans feel about General Eisenhower's coming. Their spirit is strong, despite their sufferings—despite even the darkness that clouds their future. But how do they feel about certain specific questions concerning the conduct of the war?

For example, what is their reaction to the Eisenhower pronouncement that Asians should fight Asians?

There is an official statement on the point by President Syngman Rhee. In an interview granted the Toronto Star he proposed that 2,000,000 South Koreans be armed, to do all the ground fighting and, with UN air and artillery support, "halt the slaughter." He added: "Then our foreign friends can get out and tackle the real enemy—the criminals in the Kremlin."

As for the suggestion that Japanese forces be brought into the war, Rhee's reaction is that the South Koreans would "turn around and fight the Japanese before the Communists if that happened." Chinese Nationalists? If they want to fight, he says they can do it on the Chinese mainland—not in Korea.

There is a great deal of food for thought in all this. Clearly, Korean sensibilities cannot be overlooked in any review of the situation. At the same time, the proposition that anything like an army of 2,000,000 men can be formed from the 23,000,000 persons in South Korea is evidently over-optimistic, and it's worth noting that Rhee leaves the guns and the planes to be manned by UN—meaning U. S.—forces.

Governor Adams' Job

In Teddy Roosevelt's day the chores of the President could be handled very nicely by a single secretary and a clerical staff to keep tabs on appointments and correspondence. The executive office of the President, as it presently exists at the White House, comprises several thousand people and a welter of agencies and planning groups with executive assistants at their head.

Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman has been the nominal boss of this organization, but there has been reason to question whether the intricate machinery was actually assisting the President to arrive at decisions and perform other aspects of his monumental job.

The Hoover Commission laid out an organizational chart for the executive department which provided for horizontal and vertical responsibilities among the various agencies so that there would be proper liaison and direction. General Eisenhower will probably toss this problem to his new top assistant, Governor Sherman Adams of New Hampshire. In any event, this is clearly an opportunity to straighten out the executive department.

It is fairly obvious that daily devotion exclusively to the duties of the Presidential office would require more hours than there are in any one day. Obviously the President must have all routine matters taken off his hands. He must have all factors of the problems which he must solve reduced to the simplest terms and presented to him in such form that reasonably quick decisions can be made.

This, in essence, is the problem of the new assistant to the President. For the sake of the incoming President's health and efficiency it can only be hoped that Governor Adams realizes the scope of his duties and gets at them as quickly as possible following the January inauguration.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

How Carbon Monoxide Poisons

Carbon monoxide is so treacherous it may produce coma without warning. This occurs when the individual is exposed to such high concentrations that the available oxygen in the air is replaced with this poisonous gas. Lesser degrees may give a warning, particularly when the man or woman realizes that headache, dizziness, and muscular weakness have resulted from carbon monoxide intoxication.

When pure air is inhaled the oxygen therein passes through the lining of the bronchi and it is then taken up by the hemoglobin of the blood. The two (oxygen and hemoglobin) are coupled like freight cars and whisked off to distant parts of the body. By contrast, when air contaminated with carbon monoxide is inhaled, the blood is given a choice of carrying off oxygen or carbon monoxide. For some unknown reason it prefers the latter compound. But the tissues rebel against this unwelcome guest because their machinery is geared to run on oxygen. The brain is unusually susceptible and expresses its displeasure by creating headache, dizziness, and coma.

As soon as fresh air and oxygen become available, the hemoglobin releases its grip and the carbon monoxide is free to escape from the body through the lungs. The blood is now forced to accept oxygen and if the deficit in the brain can be made up before permanent changes take place, complete recovery occurs. On the other hand, if relief is delayed the individual may succumb or, if he survives, a cerebral disturbance remains.

Acute carbon monoxide poisoning is a common occurrence. It is not limited to those who attempt suicide or who work in garages. The condition is encountered occasionally in the home through leakage of manufactured gas from open burners and defective appliances. Carbon monoxide is found also in the smoke of fires or furnaces and is a hazard in many industries, especially coal mining and steel.

Reference frequently is made to chronic carbon monoxide poisoning but most authorities are dubious of the existence of such a state. The victims are said to be traffic policemen working in tunnels or heavily congested areas, or mechanics in poorly ventilated garages. These men inhale small amounts of the gas day after day but it does not remain in the blood or accumulate in the body because it is promptly eliminated in the ordinary processes of respiration. Exposure is chronic but not the poisoning. Meanwhile, the tissues receive enough oxygen to stay alive so that there are no after-effects. In this respect, nature is kind to the many thousands of persons who are continuously or repeatedly exposed to low concentrations of the gas. Should symptoms develop they are likely to be temporary; a change of occupation or rotation in jobs is followed by complete relief.

Another misconception relative to carbon monoxide centers about its effect on the mucous membranes of the nose, throat, and bronchi. The gas itself is not irritating nor does it lower resistance to infection. The exception is the development of pneumonia or bronchitis subsequent to acute asphyxiation. Here the condition ensues as an aftermath of unconsciousness and usually is attributed to a circulatory disturbance (lack of oxygen) or to the inhalation of the noxious material.

A burning sensation in the "pit of the stomach." It commonly is associated with belching and regurgitation of gastric acid into the lower end of the esophagus (gullet). The prefix "heart" was attached possibly because of the proximity of the discomfort to the site of the old ticker.

No. The supporting structures are stretched or torn and there is no other way except through surgery to repair the damage.

Rhee Puts Eisenhower On Political Spot; Ike Will Be Hailed As Liberator; Korean Leader Continues Long Battle For Country's Survival

(Ed. Note—This is the second of Drew Pearson's series of columns on the problems facing Gen. Eisenhower in Korea.)

WASHINGTON — Politics is not supposed to be on the agenda of General Eisenhower's Korean trip. But the first person he will meet in Korea is gnarled, cantankerous President Syngman Rhee, hero to millions, despot to a few, and the man who has kept the light of Korean independence burning for half a century.

And President Syngman Rhee has seen to it, well in advance of the President-elect's visit, that he is put on the political hot spot. For Rhee has told the people of Korea that Eisenhower has come to liberate their country.

Thus any compromise Eisenhower may propose, or anything he does short of a drive into North Korea up to the banks of the Yalu River, leaves disappointment and a serious morale problem in his wake.

The man who will greet Eisenhower in Korea is one of the most extraordinary heads of government in the world.

He has spent seven years in prison, seven months under constant torture, 41 years in exile, has had a $300,000 price on his head, and has probably fought longer to bring self-government to at least one rocky, isolated portion of the Orient than any other man living today.

Rhee In Exile

I knew Rhee when he lived in exile in Washington, president of the so-called "Korean Republic," then under the emperor of Japan, and which no one thought ever could be free again—no one, that is, except Rhee.

The president in exile, gnarled, aged even then, had come to this country at the age of 27 during the Portsmouth Conference which settled the war between Russia and Japan. And, though he was received personally by President Theodore Roosevelt, the Russo-Japanese Treaty, when it emerged, contained, as Article I, a provision for turning Korea over to Japan. At that time, we did not consider the rights of small nations important.

Rhee, however, battled on. He had become a Christian, had written a book, "The Spirit of Independence," while in jail. Now he studied at Harvard, got to know Woodrow Wilson at Princeton, attended the Versailles Conference, once again with a plea that the great powers recognize Korea, once again to be disappointed by his friend Wilson.

Back in Washington during the early days of the F. D. Roosevelt administration, Rhee tried to get the State Department to issue a passport to an Austrian lady he had met at Geneva, Franziska Donner. The State Department gave him the usual run-around.

Finally I called his plight to the attention of Cordell Hull, who cut red tape, let Fraulein Donner enter this country. She and Dr. Rhee were married. She has been beside him through the heartaches and headaches of Korea ever since, and no matter how discouraging the news in Korea. I never fail to hear from them at Christmas.

Modern-Day Saviour

When Syngman Rhee returned to Korea after the Japanese surrender in 1945, he was received as a modern-day saviour. Every political party welcomed him, offered him support, asked him to become president—even the Communists.

It is not unnatural that a 77-year-old battler for liberty should find himself in frequent opposition with U. S. military and diplomatic authorities, and Rhee's first tangle was with Gen. John Hodge, U. S. commander in Korea, who wanted to compromise between the Communists and right-wing parties. Rhee refused, started a battle against the Communists from the start.

More recently he has had differences with General Van Fleet over martial law, over closing down the Voice of America by Rhee, and over taking ROK troops out of the front line to "stabilize" Korea during last summer's elections. Some of Rhee's political opponents were even arrested by him and thrown in jail when they opposed him in the Constituent Assembly.

In the final popular vote, however, Rhee was backed by the overwhelming majority of the South Korean people — 5,000,000 against 1,800,000 polled by his three opponents.

Rhee has been criticized because there is graft and inefficiency around him. But unlike Chiang Kai-shek he has moved to clean it up. And unlike Chiang Kai-shek, Rhee has been poor all his life, and is still poor. He has fired a total of 30 cabinet officers in an effort to attain more efficiency in government in a country which has not governed itself for more than a half century.

Tortured Rhee

But the thing to remember about Rhee is that, though he is wilful and stubborn, he has never ceased fighting for the best interests of his country. He has been rebuffed. He has been disheartened. He has been beaten with bamboo rods every day for seven months. He has had oiled paper wrapped round his wrists and then set on fire. He has had his fingers so horribly mashed that even today he blows on them to keep them warm. He has had to wear a 20-pound wooden cangue around his neck and sit with his feet and hands locked in stocks.

But through it all he has not wavered from the goal of Korean independence.

This is the man who will sit down with General Eisenhower in Korea as the representative of a valiant though divided people, a man who is certain to demand the complete purge of communism from his country before he stops fighting.

An Unwanted Diplomat

Dr. Emil Weil is the Hungarian minister to the United States. He lives in our country with extra-territorial privileges. He is entitled to travel anywhere he chooses; he can observe conditions and report back to his government in a secret diplomatic pouch. He is not subject to the restrictions of our law. These are the rights of every diplomat in all countries.

However, before any envoy comes to the United States, his government must have asked the State Department whether he is acceptable to our country; the State Department must have approved Weil or he would not have come.

This Dr. Emil Weil was in charge of the X-ray department of a hospital maintained in Budapest by a large industrial firm. Before World War II he was sentenced to seven years imprisonment for underground Communist activities. After the siege of Budapest and the Russian occupation he was entrusted by the Russians with a Communist propaganda campaign among the doctors and the medical staff of hospitals in Hungary. He became head of the "Medical Council," an organization of almost unlimited power, and used this organization to spread Marxism and a pro-Russian attitude among the Hungarian doctors. Intimidation and threats were his chief weapons. He prevented physicians of whom he disapproved from being given higher positions in hospitals or the government service, summoning the political police to arrest or intern the doctor. He was secretary general of the Hungarian Sanitary Workers Trade Union. He created such an atmosphere of terror that the intimidated doctors were compelled to give in to him unless they wanted to lose their jobs.

All non-Communist experts were dismissed from the Ministry of Public Welfare—an organization under complete Communist control—and their places were filled with inexperienced Communists recommended by Weil. There were no drugs, bandages or instruments in Hungary, because the Russians seized all that was left behind by the Germans. When a donation of drugs and medical instruments finally arrived from America, the Ministry of Public Welfare was induced by Weil to demand participation in their distribution, diverting the gift to Communist propaganda.

Weil has been accused of getting the minister of Public Welfare, Mrs. Anna Ratko, who used to be a textile worker, and who was appointed a cabinet minister with his assistance, to say: "The Hungarian doctors will have to detach themselves from Western medical science which is falsified and does not serve the public interest, but only the enemies of the people." In the meanwhile hundreds of Hungarians were dying for the lack of penicillin, streptomycin, aureomycin, etc., and for the lack of an iron lung, which were available only in the West. The Western charitable organizations, however, seeing that their help was misused for Communist propaganda, discontinued their aid. Dr. Weil's mission was fulfilled by April 1948, when all important medical positions were finally in the hands of the Communists.

Various accusations have been made against Dr. Weil in relation to Cardinal Mindszenty, who had been drugged or medically "treated" in order to obtain a confession. There has been no statement in denial of the participation of the Hungarian minister to the United States in this outrage. However, the record has been established that he was the one who appointed the "experts" who carried out the criminal treatment, which was an operation on the cardinal's brain. An Hungarian journalist who since then escaped to the West declared in a newspaper article shortly after his escape that it was Dr. Weil who handled the electric device used in the course of this brain operation performed on the victims of the various political trials, among them Cardinal Mindszenty. There has been no confirmation or denial of this report.

It is impossible to ignore the repetition of Dr. Emil Weil's name in connection with the Mindszenty outrage, and it is up to him to prove them untrue. He was awarded the "Kossuth Prize," which is the highest award of the Communist regime. Why Dr. Emil Weil, who has never been in the diplomatic service, should have been appointed minister to the United States, is not clear; yet, he has been here about two years.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Naturally the Democrats are gleeful over the first evidence of a rift between Senator Taft and President-elect Eisenhower. This came with the Ohio senator's comment that the selection of Martin P. Durkin as secretary of labor was "an incredible appointment." But the effects of the controversy may well be to strengthen rather than weaken General Eisenhower's efforts to promote harmony and unity in the country as a whole. It may even start a chain of events that could lead to a better understanding between labor and management.

Persons who are not familiar with Senator Taft's blunt way of expressing himself—and he never minces words—may read into his remarks a feeling of resentment, but actually the senator would be the first to say that it is the new President's right to pick his own cabinet.

From a tactical standpoint, Senator Taft was, in effect, making it clear that he isn't receding one bit in his position that the Taft-Hartley Act shall not be emasculated. Knowing that Mr. Durkin has favored its repeal, that he voted for Stevenson, and that he has been serving as the national president of an AFL union, it would be surprising if the Ohio senator embraced the new secretary of Labor and uttered loud cheers over his appointment. In a way, Mr. Taft was declaring his independence. He if going to criticize when he thinks criticism is justified, and he is going to praise when he thinks praise is due.

Knows President's Prerogatives

No other man in America did more to insure the election of General Eisenhower than did Senator Taft. Had he sulked in the campaign, his followers would have sulked. The Republicans got their big electroal vote by swelling the total vote in Republican areas where organization work done by Taft followers counted heavily.

But the Ohio Senator is too experienced in public affairs and too respectful of the prerogatives of a President to assume that he could direct and control the chief executive's cabinet appointments. To assume this would be to corroborate what the Stevenson spokesman predicted during the campaign — that General Eisenhower would be the "captive" of Senator Taft and his forces.

Anyone who stops a moment to analyze objectively the political situation in which General Eisenhower finds himself today will have to agree that, with a cabinet consisting largely of representatives of big business and big finance, and containing two lawyers with a New York City financial background, he could hardly add as a secretary of Labor a man who was known to be hostile to union labor.

The selection of Mr. Durkin from the ranks of trade unionism was a simple matter of political commonsense as well as balanced consideration of the different economic viewpoints that will be represented now in the new cabinet.

It is logical that Senator Taft should adopt a cautious position with respect to a cabinet member who had been pledged to outright repeal of the Taft Hartley Act. It is significant that the new secretary of Labor says he wants to bring both Senator Taft and trade-union leaders of the CIO and AFL into a conference to try to work out amendments to the existing labor - management law. This is always the right approach to the making of constructive labor legislation. Back in 1926 all the Railroad Brotherhood unions and the executives of the railroads got together over a period of several weeks in conference with congressional leaders and worked out the Railway Labor Act of 1926. It was adopted by overwhelming vote of Republicans and Democrats. It was the first federal law that made collective bargaining compulsory on both management and labor. History might repeat itself—it may be that labor and management can do the same thing now.

Long Step Forward

Plainly the presence of a trade-union man in the cabinet makes possible an effective leadership by the new administration which could take the Taft-Hartley issue out of politics altogether, and that will be important in the congressional elections of 1954.

The many comments from CIO as well as AFL leaders who applaud the selection of Mr. Durkin indicate that General Eisenhower has taken a long step forward to promote harmony on the labor-management front. To have appointed someone with a distinctly anti-labor background would have ushered in a climate in which strikes and work stoppages and grievous friction between labor and management might have prevailed.

Senator Taft may really be more upset about the fact that some of his other recommendations for cabinet appointments were not accepted, and it was a bit easier to find fault with the naming of a Democrat and a trade unionist for the Department of Labor. In that area of public affairs, Mr. Taft has taken a firm position and the chances are that he need not worry too much about Mr. Durkin's possible influence in Congress because, when it comes to amending the Taft-Hartley Act, a majority of both houses will stand solidly against a one-sided law.

There is a chance now for negotiating amendments and making a law satisfactory to both sides if the trade unions really want that kind of setup, and this remains to be seen. Mr. Durkin is the man who is really on the spot.

Matter Of Fact

Churchill Is Coming

LONDON

Beyond the thorny thicket of immediate problems—Korea, Indo-China, Iran, the German divisions and the rest—one can already discern an even bigger difficulty in President-elect Eisenhower's path ahead.

In the present world situation, the main aim and theme of President-elect Eisenhower's policy must be to maintain, to strengthen and to stabilize the Western alliance. Before he can achieve this aim, the biggest question Eisenhower will have to answer is whether the Western alliance can be made economically workable.

It can be said on highest authority that the new President's old friend, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, now means to press this question in the White House at the earliest possible date after the inauguration.

At this very moment, the preparations for Churchill's approach to Eisenhower are going forward here in London, in the form of the grandiose Commonwealth Conference. Churchill, whose lack of interest in economic matters has always been notorious, has now entered the battle for Britain's and the Commonwealth's economic stability with the vigor and determination he used to reserve for shooting wars. Prior to the present meeting, a drum fire of the famous Churchill minutes stirred every Whitehall department to make the most vigorous and detailed preparations.

An Urgent Question

Now, with the Commonwealth leaders gathered in London, the main hope is to work out the best plan possible to "permit the pound sterling to look the almighty dollar in the eye." When this Commonwealth plan has been agreed upon, Churchill means to go to Washington and say to his former comrade in arms, "This is what we think we can do. Now how about it, Ike?"

This question which Churchill will put to Eisenhower is much more urgent than most people suppose. By heavy sacrifices, Britain has now recovered from her third post-war economic crisis. Viewed as a business concern, Britain is paying her way again. Yet the fact remains that the reserves of hard cash which constitutes the working capital of Britain and her Commonwealth are still fearfully low—well under the two billion dollar figure which used to be considered the rockbottom minimum.

This means, in turn, that Britain and the other nations of the sterling area are almost totally unprotected against any unfavorable jog of the world economy. Let a slight American recession reduce our dollar purchases of British goods. Or let the price of Britain's imports rise a bit more rapidly than the price of British exports. Ruin will again stare Britain in the face.

Britain's reserves today are far lower than they were in the successive crises of 1947, 1949 and 1951, each of which almost plunged this country into final bankruptcy. The regular recurrence of these crises has also produced a perilous new psychology. Still another crisis will not merely be economically disastrous; it will also be politically catastrophic. For one more crisis is fairly certain to drive the British to give up their hard struggle to maintain themselves as a great world power and our own chief ally.

Want "Trade, Not Aid"

No wonder, then, that Winston Churchill has entered the unfamiliar battle for economic stability breathing his old war-like fire. Yet all the great old man's courage and determination will not win this new battle if President-elect Eisenhower gives him a cold answer. The trouble is that the problem facing Britain and her Commonwealth is also an American problem and a Western problem.

This underlying economic problem of the Western allies can be summed up in a single, simple fact. Britain and the other Western countries now have to purchase about five billion dollars worth more of our American raw materials and manufactures each year than we allow them to sell to us. Hitherto, this huge annual dollar gap has been poulticed over by various forms of American dollar aid. What Churchill now wants—what the whole Western world now wants, in fact—has been expressed in the slogan of Churchill's Chancellor of the Exchequer, R. A. Butler, "trade not aid."

There is no other way to give strong, permanent economic underpinning to the Western alliance. For this purpose the obvious lines of necessary American action are drastically lowering our tariff barriers, joining in a massive effort to stabilize the Western currencies

Fully 1,500 private institutions of higher learning, particularly liberal arts colleges and medical schools, are in sore straits for lack of money. Inflation has cut the buying power of their fixed income.

Tuition has been increased almost to the saturation point. High taxes have dried up potential sources of endowment, and pledges of annual support by alumni have not alone been sufficient for safe reliance. These institutions need $250,000,000 more annually for operating expenses. Where are they to get it?

For three years the Commission on Financing Higher Education, consisting of eight leading educators and four distinguished laymen, has been wrestling with this problem in a nation-wide survey at the instance of the Association of American Universities and with the support of grants of $400,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation and $50,000 from the Carnegie Corporation.

The commission has come to two major conclusions:

That "free" colleges and universities must not seek federal aid, for that could result in ultimate uniformity and government control.

That for a new and adequate source of income they must look to industry, which is a beneficiary both of professional and of liberal arts training.

Says the report:

"Under today's conditions industry is the last untapped source to which educators may look—except government. Business leaders and educators alike fear further dependence on government. Business and education have the same interest in maintaining freedom and each may lose it unless the other retains it."

For scholarships, fellowships, research and operating grants in education and basic research the federal government in 1950, the report points out, expended $468,000,000, which was 28 per cent of the entire higher educational income that year. There are those—among them are some educators—who would like to see a "liberal" extension of federal aid.

Not so this 12-man commission that has gone over the entire field. Besides industrial contributions, it urges alumni, labor unions, church groups and service clubs to contribute.

As to the share industry should bear in the cost of higher education, the commission suggests three per cent of net income before taxation, or approximately $325,000,000 a year. Corporate gifts to charity have "increased nearly tenfold, since the income tax laws have permitted the deduction of these gifts"—but higher education has received only a minor part.

Such contributions, of course, would have to be voluntary. Tax-compelled, it would be a case of out of the frying pan into the governmental fire the commission so deplores.

As Koreans Wait

Seoul is decking itself out in its pitiful best to greet an expected visitor. No one can say for sure that General Eisenhower will include the war-ravaged capital in his Korean itinerary and those who are responsible for his safety might forbid it. But if he does go there, he will get the warmest welcome the chief city of Korea can give an American President-elect.

This enthusiastic activity in Seoul is one indication of how South Koreans feel about General Eisenhower's coming. Their spirit is strong, despite their sufferings—despite even the darkness that clouds their future. But how do they feel about certain specific questions concerning the conduct of the war?

For example, what is their reaction to the Eisenhower pronouncement that Asians should fight Asians?

There is an official statement on the point by President Syngman Rhee. In an interview granted the Toronto Star he proposed that 2,000,000 South Koreans be armed, to do all the ground fighting and, with UN air and artillery support, "halt the slaughter." He added: "Then our foreign friends can get out and tackle the real enemy—the criminals in the Kremlin."

As for the suggestion that Japanese forces be brought into the war, Rhee's reaction is that the South Koreans would "turn around and fight the Japanese before the Communists if that happened." Chinese Nationalists? If they want to fight, he says they can do it on the Chinese mainland—not in Korea.

There is a great deal of food for thought in all this. Clearly, Korean sensibilities cannot be overlooked in any review of the situation. At the same time, the proposition that anything like an army of 2,000,000 men can be formed from the 23,000,000 persons in South Korea is evidently over-optimistic, and it's worth noting that Rhee leaves the guns and the planes to be manned by UN—meaning U. S.—forces.

Governor Adams' Job

In Teddy Roosevelt's day the chores of the President could be handled very nicely by a single secretary and a clerical staff to keep tabs on appointments and correspondence. The executive office of the President, as it presently exists at the White House, comprises several thousand people and a welter of agencies and planning groups with executive assistants at their head.

Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman has been the nominal boss of this organization, but there has been reason to question whether the intricate machinery was actually assisting the President to arrive at decisions and perform other aspects of his monumental job.

The Hoover Commission laid out an organizational chart for the executive department which provided for horizontal and vertical responsibilities among the various agencies so that there would be proper liaison and direction. General Eisenhower will probably toss this problem to his new top assistant, Governor Sherman Adams of New Hampshire. In any event, this is clearly an opportunity to straighten out the executive department.

It is fairly obvious that daily devotion exclusively to the duties of the Presidential office would require more hours than there are in any one day. Obviously the President must have all routine matters taken off his hands. He must have all factors of the problems which he must solve reduced to the simplest terms and presented to him in such form that reasonably quick decisions can be made.

This, in essence, is the problem of the new assistant to the President. For the sake of the incoming President's health and efficiency it can only be hoped that Governor Adams realizes the scope of his duties and gets at them as quickly as possible following the January inauguration.

How Carbon Monoxide Poisons

Carbon monoxide is so treacherous it may produce coma without warning. This occurs when the individual is exposed to such high concentrations that the available oxygen in the air is replaced with this poisonous gas. Lesser degrees may give a warning, particularly when the man or woman realizes that headache, dizziness, and muscular weakness have resulted from carbon monoxide intoxication.

When pure air is inhaled the oxygen therein passes through the lining of the bronchi and it is then taken up by the hemoglobin of the blood. The two (oxygen and hemoglobin) are coupled like freight cars and whisked off to distant parts of the body. By contrast, when air contaminated with carbon monoxide is inhaled, the blood is given a choice of carrying off oxygen or carbon monoxide. For some unknown reason it prefers the latter compound. But the tissues rebel against this unwelcome guest because their machinery is geared to run on oxygen. The brain is unusually susceptible and expresses its displeasure by creating headache, dizziness, and coma.

As soon as fresh air and oxygen become available, the hemoglobin releases its grip and the carbon monoxide is free to escape from the body through the lungs. The blood is now forced to accept oxygen and if the deficit in the brain can be made up before permanent changes take place, complete recovery occurs. On the other hand, if relief is delayed the individual may succumb or, if he survives, a cerebral disturbance remains.

Acute carbon monoxide poisoning is a common occurrence. It is not limited to those who attempt suicide or who work in garages. The condition is encountered occasionally in the home through leakage of manufactured gas from open burners and defective appliances. Carbon monoxide is found also in the smoke of fires or furnaces and is a hazard in many industries, especially coal mining and steel.

Reference frequently is made to chronic carbon monoxide poisoning but most authorities are dubious of the existence of such a state. The victims are said to be traffic policemen working in tunnels or heavily congested areas, or mechanics in poorly ventilated garages. These men inhale small amounts of the gas day after day but it does not remain in the blood or accumulate in the body because it is promptly eliminated in the ordinary processes of respiration. Exposure is chronic but not the poisoning. Meanwhile, the tissues receive enough oxygen to stay alive so that there are no after-effects. In this respect, nature is kind to the many thousands of persons who are continuously or repeatedly exposed to low concentrations of the gas. Should symptoms develop they are likely to be temporary; a change of occupation or rotation in jobs is followed by complete relief.

Another misconception relative to carbon monoxide centers about its effect on the mucous membranes of the nose, throat, and bronchi. The gas itself is not irritating nor does it lower resistance to infection. The exception is the development of pneumonia or bronchitis subsequent to acute asphyxiation. Here the condition ensues as an aftermath of unconsciousness and usually is attributed to a circulatory disturbance (lack of oxygen) or to the inhalation of the noxious material.

Rhee Puts Eisenhower On Political Spot; Ike Will Be Hailed As Liberator; Korean Leader Continues Long Battle For Country's Survival

Modern-Day Saviour

When Syngman Rhee returned to Korea after the Japanese surrender in 1945, he was received as a modern-day saviour. Every political party welcomed him, offered him support, asked him to become president—even the Communists.

It is not unnatural that a 77-year-old battler for liberty should find himself in frequent opposition with U. S. military and diplomatic authorities, and Rhee's first tangle was with Gen. John Hodge, U. S. commander in Korea, who wanted to compromise between the Communists and right-wing parties. Rhee refused, started a battle against the Communists from the start.

More recently he has had differences with General Van Fleet over martial law, over closing down the Voice of America by Rhee, and over taking ROK troops out of the front line to "stabilize" Korea during last summer's elections. Some of Rhee's political opponents were even arrested by him and thrown in jail when they opposed him in the Constituent Assembly.

In the final popular vote, however, Rhee was backed by the overwhelming majority of the South Korean people — 5,000,000 against 1,800,000 polled by his three opponents.

Rhee has been criticized because there is graft and inefficiency around him. But unlike Chiang Kai-shek he has moved to clean it up. And unlike Chiang Kai-shek, Rhee has been poor all his life, and is still poor. He has fired a total of 30 cabinet officers in an effort to attain more efficiency in government in a country which has not governed itself for more than a half century.

Tortured Rhee

But the thing to remember about Rhee is that, though he is wilful and stubborn, he has never ceased fighting for the best interests of his country. He has been rebuffed. He has been disheartened. He has been beaten with bamboo rods every day for seven months. He has had oiled paper wrapped round his wrists and then set on fire. He has had his fingers so horribly mashed that even today he blows on them to keep them warm. He has had to wear a 20-pound wooden cangue around his neck and sit with his feet and hands locked in stocks.

But through it all he has not wavered from the goal of Korean independence.

This is the man who will sit down with General Eisenhower in Korea as the representative of a valiant though divided people, a man who is certain to demand the complete purge of communism from his country before he stops fighting.

These Days

An Unwanted Diplomat

Dr. Emil Weil is the Hungarian minister to the United States. He lives in our country with extra-territorial privileges. He is entitled to travel anywhere he chooses; he can observe conditions and report back to his government in a secret diplomatic pouch. He is not subject to the restrictions of our law. These are the rights of every diplomat in all countries.

However, before any envoy comes to the United States, his government must have asked the State Department whether he is acceptable to our country; the State Department must have approved Weil or he would not have come.

This Dr. Emil Weil was in charge of the X-ray department of a hospital maintained in Budapest by a large industrial firm. Before World War II he was sentenced to seven years imprisonment for underground Communist activities. After the siege of Budapest and the Russian occupation he was entrusted by the Russians with a Communist propaganda campaign among the doctors and the medical staff of hospitals in Hungary. He became head of the "Medical Council," an organization of almost unlimited power, and used this organization to spread Marxism and a pro-Russian attitude among the Hungarian doctors. Intimidation and threats were his chief weapons. He prevented physicians of whom he disapproved from being given higher positions in hospitals or the government service, summoning the political police to arrest or intern the doctor. He was secretary general of the Hungarian Sanitary Workers Trade Union. He created such an atmosphere of terror that the intimidated doctors were compelled to give in to him unless they wanted to lose their jobs.

All non-Communist experts were dismissed from the Ministry of Public Welfare—an organization under complete Communist control—and their places were filled with inexperienced Communists recommended by Weil. There were no drugs, bandages or instruments in Hungary, because the Russians seized all that was left behind by the Germans. When a donation of drugs and medical instruments finally arrived from America, the Ministry of Public Welfare was induced by Weil to demand participation in their distribution, diverting the gift to Communist propaganda.

Weil has been accused of getting the minister of Public Welfare, Mrs. Anna Ratko, who used to be a textile worker, and who was appointed a cabinet minister with his assistance, to say: "The Hungarian doctors will have to detach themselves from Western medical science which is falsified and does not serve the public interest, but only the enemies of the people." In the meanwhile hundreds of Hungarians were dying for the lack of penicillin, streptomycin, aureomycin, etc., and for the lack of an iron lung, which were available only in the West. The Western charitable organizations, however, seeing that their help was misused for Communist propaganda, discontinued their aid. Dr. Weil's mission was fulfilled by April 1948, when all important medical positions were finally in the hands of the Communists.

Various accusations have been made against Dr. Weil in relation to Cardinal Mindszenty, who had been drugged or medically "treated" in order to obtain a confession. There has been no statement in denial of the participation of the Hungarian minister to the United States in this outrage. However, the record has been established that he was the one who appointed the "experts" who carried out the criminal treatment, which was an operation on the cardinal's brain. An Hungarian journalist who since then escaped to the West declared in a newspaper article shortly after his escape that it was Dr. Weil who handled the electric device used in the course of this brain operation performed on the victims of the various political trials, among them Cardinal Mindszenty. There has been no confirmation or denial of this report.

It is impossible to ignore the repetition of Dr. Emil Weil's name in connection with the Mindszenty outrage, and it is up to him to prove them untrue. He was awarded the "Kossuth Prize," which is the highest award of the Communist regime. Why Dr. Emil Weil, who has never been in the diplomatic service, should have been appointed minister to the United States, is not clear; yet, he has been here about two years.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Naturally the Democrats are gleeful over the first evidence of a rift between Senator Taft and President-elect Eisenhower. This came with the Ohio senator's comment that the selection of Martin P. Durkin as secretary of labor was "an incredible appointment." But the effects of the controversy may well be to strengthen rather than weaken General Eisenhower's efforts to promote harmony and unity in the country as a whole. It may even start a chain of events that could lead to a better understanding between labor and management.

Persons who are not familiar with Senator Taft's blunt way of expressing himself—and he never minces words—may read into his remarks a feeling of resentment, but actually the senator would be the first to say that it is the new President's right to pick his own cabinet.

From a tactical standpoint, Senator Taft was, in effect, making it clear that he isn't receding one bit in his position that the Taft-Hartley Act shall not be emasculated. Knowing that Mr. Durkin has favored its repeal, that he voted for Stevenson, and that he has been serving as the national president of an AFL union, it would be surprising if the Ohio senator embraced the new secretary of Labor and uttered loud cheers over his appointment. In a way, Mr. Taft was declaring his independence. He if going to criticize when he thinks criticism is justified, and he is going to praise when he thinks praise is due.

Knows President's Prerogatives

No other man in America did more to insure the election of General Eisenhower than did Senator Taft. Had he sulked in the campaign, his followers would have sulked. The Republicans got their big electroal vote by swelling the total vote in Republican areas where organization work done by Taft followers counted heavily.

But the Ohio Senator is too experienced in public affairs and too respectful of the prerogatives of a President to assume that he could direct and control the chief executive's cabinet appointments. To assume this would be to corroborate what the Stevenson spokesman predicted during the campaign — that General Eisenhower would be the "captive" of Senator Taft and his forces.

Anyone who stops a moment to analyze objectively the political situation in which General Eisenhower finds himself today will have to agree that, with a cabinet consisting largely of representatives of big business and big finance, and containing two lawyers with a New York City financial background, he could hardly add as a secretary of Labor a man who was known to be hostile to union labor.

The selection of Mr. Durkin from the ranks of trade unionism was a simple matter of political commonsense as well as balanced consideration of the different economic viewpoints that will be represented now in the new cabinet.

It is logical that Senator Taft should adopt a cautious position with respect to a cabinet member who had been pledged to outright repeal of the Taft Hartley Act. It is significant that the new secretary of Labor says he wants to bring both Senator Taft and trade-union leaders of the CIO and AFL into a conference to try to work out amendments to the existing labor - management law. This is always the right approach to the making of constructive labor legislation. Back in 1926 all the Railroad Brotherhood unions and the executives of the railroads got together over a period of several weeks in conference with congressional leaders and worked out the Railway Labor Act of 1926. It was adopted by overwhelming vote of Republicans and Democrats. It was the first federal law that made collective bargaining compulsory on both management and labor. History might repeat itself—it may be that labor and management can do the same thing now.

Long Step Forward

Plainly the presence of a trade-union man in the cabinet makes possible an effective leadership by the new administration which could take the Taft-Hartley issue out of politics altogether, and that will be important in the congressional elections of 1954.

The many comments from CIO as well as AFL leaders who applaud the selection of Mr. Durkin indicate that General Eisenhower has taken a long step forward to promote harmony on the labor-management front. To have appointed someone with a distinctly anti-labor background would have ushered in a climate in which strikes and work stoppages and grievous friction between labor and management might have prevailed.

Senator Taft may really be more upset about the fact that some of his other recommendations for cabinet appointments were not accepted, and it was a bit easier to find fault with the naming of a Democrat and a trade unionist for the Department of Labor. In that area of public affairs, Mr. Taft has taken a firm position and the chances are that he need not worry too much about Mr. Durkin's possible influence in Congress because, when it comes to amending the Taft-Hartley Act, a majority of both houses will stand solidly against a one-sided law.

There is a chance now for negotiating amendments and making a law satisfactory to both sides if the trade unions really want that kind of setup, and this remains to be seen. Mr. Durkin is the man who is really on the spot.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Churchill Is Coming

LONDON

Beyond the thorny thicket of immediate problems—Korea, Indo-China, Iran, the German divisions and the rest—one can already discern an even bigger difficulty in President-elect Eisenhower's path ahead.

In the present world situation, the main aim and theme of President-elect Eisenhower's policy must be to maintain, to strengthen and to stabilize the Western alliance. Before he can achieve this aim, the biggest question Eisenhower will have to answer is whether the Western alliance can be made economically workable.

It can be said on highest authority that the new President's old friend, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, now means to press this question in the White House at the earliest possible date after the inauguration.

At this very moment, the preparations for Churchill's approach to Eisenhower are going forward here in London, in the form of the grandiose Commonwealth Conference. Churchill, whose lack of interest in economic matters has always been notorious, has now entered the battle for Britain's and the Commonwealth's economic stability with the vigor and determination he used to reserve for shooting wars. Prior to the present meeting, a drum fire of the famous Churchill minutes stirred every Whitehall department to make the most vigorous and detailed preparations.

An Urgent Question

Now, with the Commonwealth leaders gathered in London, the main hope is to work out the best plan possible to "permit the pound sterling to look the almighty dollar in the eye." When this Commonwealth plan has been agreed upon, Churchill means to go to Washington and say to his former comrade in arms, "This is what we think we can do. Now how about it, Ike?"

This question which Churchill will put to Eisenhower is much more urgent than most people suppose. By heavy sacrifices, Britain has now recovered from her third post-war economic crisis. Viewed as a business concern, Britain is paying her way again. Yet the fact remains that the reserves of hard cash which constitutes the working capital of Britain and her Commonwealth are still fearfully low—well under the two billion dollar figure which used to be considered the rockbottom minimum.

This means, in turn, that Britain and the other nations of the sterling area are almost totally unprotected against any unfavorable jog of the world economy. Let a slight American recession reduce our dollar purchases of British goods. Or let the price of Britain's imports rise a bit more rapidly than the price of British exports. Ruin will again stare Britain in the face.

Britain's reserves today are far lower than they were in the successive crises of 1947, 1949 and 1951, each of which almost plunged this country into final bankruptcy. The regular recurrence of these crises has also produced a perilous new psychology. Still another crisis will not merely be economically disastrous; it will also be politically catastrophic. For one more crisis is fairly certain to drive the British to give up their hard struggle to maintain themselves as a great world power and our own chief ally.

Want "Trade, Not Aid"

No wonder, then, that Winston Churchill has entered the unfamiliar battle for economic stability breathing his old war-like fire. Yet all the great old man's courage and determination will not win this new battle if President-elect Eisenhower gives him a cold answer. The trouble is that the problem facing Britain and her Commonwealth is also an American problem and a Western problem.

This underlying economic problem of the Western allies can be summed up in a single, simple fact. Britain and the other Western countries now have to purchase about five billion dollars worth more of our American raw materials and manufactures each year than we allow them to sell to us. Hitherto, this huge annual dollar gap has been poulticed over by various forms of American dollar aid. What Churchill now wants—what the whole Western world now wants, in fact—has been expressed in the slogan of Churchill's Chancellor of the Exchequer, R. A. Butler, "trade not aid."

There is no other way to give strong, permanent economic underpinning to the Western alliance. For this purpose the obvious lines of necessary American action are drastically lowering our tariff barriers, joining in a massive effort to stabilize the Western currencies

$7 Dividend Is Declared By WM

Directors of the Western Maryland Railway Tuesday declared a dividend of $7 a share on the 7 per cent cumulative first preferred stock for the year ended June 30, 1935.

The dividend is payable December 29 to holders of record December 15.

This payment will bring the dividend arrears on the first preferred down to $120.75 a share.

This is the second dividend of $7 a share voted on the senior preferred stock this year. The preceding payment was made September 29.

The company also paid two dividends of $7 a share last year, one on August 30 and the other of November 30.

Previously for several years the board had made it a practice to declare only one dividend of $7 a share each year, for payment in November.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will be the principal beneficiary of the Western Maryland dividend, as it owns 167,127 shares or 94.2 per cent of the latter road's senior stock. The two $7 dividends this year will yield the B&O a total of about $2,340,000 from that source.

SRC Seeks Bids For Office, Shop Buildings Construction

The Maryland State Roads Commission will advertise for bids for the construction of an office and shop buildings on its property on State Route 49 (Braddock Road) about two miles west of Cumberland.

The bids will be opened at the commission's Baltimore office, 108 East Lexington Street, on Tuesday, December 30, according to the SRC.

The one building will be constructed of concrete block with a part brick veneer construction with a built-up roof and will measure 72 feet by 154 feet.

The 72-foot part of this two-story building will face Braddock Road and will house district offices of the State Roads Commission.

In the rear of the offices will be repair shops and storage space.

The second building will be of brick and concrete block with corrugated, asbestos roof and will measure 71 feet by 131 feet. This will be used to house district equipment.

The contract is for the complete construction of the buildings, including interior finish, plumbing, heating, electrical work, air conditioning in the first building, sewage disposal system, etc.

Sidewalks, rails and main entrance steps are also to be included.

Materials to be used include reinforced concrete, steel joists, structural steel columns and beams, steel windows, cast stone copings, metal rolling garage doors, hoists, and others as listed in the specifications that will be available at SRC offices in Baltimore.

Under the first phase of the overall project to give the district staff and the county equipment a central location the George F. Hazelwood Company has drained, graded and fenced the five and three-quarter acre area on Braddock Road.

Grass has been planted on the road side and eventually trees will be planted to surround the fenced in area, according to G. Bates Chaires, district engineer.

The lot will be paved under a third contract, the State Roads Commission reports.

At present district SRC offices are located on the second floor of a Decatur Street building. The county SRC garage is on Maplewside and most of the equipment has to be stored outdoors.

Space Saving Tree

Here's an idea that has special appeal for apartment dwellers and families in small homes. If you have a large window with a Venetian blind, you'll surely want to try this clever idea.

Where space is limited you can easily make your own Christmas tree with fire-resistant crepe paper, multiple Christmas tree lights, and a lighted star.

To create the compact tree shown in the photograph above, draw an outline of a tree on the Venetian blind. Use a china marking pencil to draw the outline so that it can be washed off easily after the holidays.

Then, wrap each slat with strips of dark green fire-resistant crepe paper, following the pencil outline for shape. Arrange lights in an upright position, anchoring them with self-sticking tape or if they have clips, clip them to the slats so that they do not touch blind or paper. Conceal wires behind slats.

Decorate with tiny colored ornaments and loops of tinsel. Top off with a lighted star and arrange gaily wrapped packages on a table beneath the tree.

Mrs. Brooks Starcher, delegate to the PTA convention in Baltimore, gave the highlights of it.

Pupils of each room gave "news broadcasts" following the class visitations. The Allegany Singers and Octet, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Willison, presented a program of Christmas music.

Refreshments were served by the home room mothers of Mrs. Mary Brodie's, Miss Adele Malcolm's and Mrs. Laverne Cross' rooms.

A jingle party is being held by the Catherine Eye Circle of Melvin Church tonight at the home of Margaret Price, 8 Marion Street.

PTA Council Will Study Different Meeting Places

Dr. Adam Baer, president of the Allegany County Council of Parent Teacher Associations, appointed a committee at a meeting of the group Monday night at West Side School to study the possibility of holding future meetings at different schools in the county.

West Side School has been the site for some time, but it is felt that moving the meeting place to the various schools would encourage interest in the council in the community where the session was scheduled and at the same time be more convenient to many members who live some distance from Cumberland.

Patrol Plan Approved

The committee to study the possible plan includes Mrs. George Dunlap, Johnson Heights School; Mrs. Roy Deffinbaugh, Mt. Savage School; and Mrs. Willard Brakeall, Jackson School in Lonaconing.

Recommendations for the School Safety Patrol by Earl Lawyer, safety chairman for the council, were approved. The committee which drew up the recommendations included Ralph R. Webster, Dr. Baer, Arthur G. Ramey, and George Hammond, the latter from the Automobile Association of America in Washington.

A play is being planned by the Future Teachers of America of Frostburg State Teachers College with mental hygiene being the theme, according to Mrs. William VanNewkirk, mental hygiene chairman for the council. The play will be entitled "And You'll Never Know." It will be presented before various PTA groups. Arrangements may be made with Mrs. Newkirk. The play will not be produced until March 1.

Mrs. Brooks Starcher, West Side School, and Mrs. Roy Deffinbaugh, Mt. Savage School, presented reports on the state convention held recently in Baltimore.

Mrs. Lester Reed, Mt. Savage School, gave a report on legislation of the Maryland Congress of PTA. A report on the Green Commission on Education was given by John E. Grindle, president of the Allegany County Teacher's Association.

More than 150 persons attended the meeting as representatives of the various PTA groups.

You can minimize dark circles and puffiness around the eyes with these methods and aids!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Personally, I doubt the claim that some girls are born with dark circles. That many a lass develops this bane of eye beauty early in her teens is an unquestionable fact.

Sometimes unwanted eye shadows are due to underpar health. In that case they should become the doctor's business. Very often, however, they befall the healthiest miss. For her the path to increased beauty lies in getting as much fresh air, exercise and sleep as she can get. The combination increases circulation and relaxation, both fleet chasers of circles, rudely routing them out of their stolen berths.

Deflating Puffiness

Any woman plagued by puffiness as well as circles will find the above advice to teens sound wisdom for herself. Couple it with the following systematic treatment and, given good health, the trouble will be greatly alleviated.

Before retiring, pat oil or eye cream around the eyes. While dressing each morning and before dinner, apply compresses. Make them of cotton in a half-moon shape. Wring them out in icy water and witch hazel or astringent. Fit and smooth them over the dark or puffy circles like a second skin.

When you get the knack, they will stay on until your dressing is finished. If, however, you'd like to prolong the treatment through morning chores, a tie-on mask, split for seeing, will aid your purpose and is available at most cosmetic counters. In either case, on removal, the swelling and shadows will appear pleasingly and noticeably less.

Make-up and Pose

Make-up can also be brought to your aid. The new under-foundation, muscle "lifts" and "straps" and a shadow-lightening cream are worth your investigation and experimentation along with the more familiar cover-up varieties.

The two simplest, quickest and cheapest circle removers are these: As surely as blue and red make purple, never let your rouge overlap your circles. As a shadow cast from a lowered brow can undo all your good work, always hold your head high—higher—highest. Only a queenly pose will suit it anyway, after you have followed these tips!

YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE

You can achieve an appealing, resonant sonorous voice—one that can be a vibrant attribute to charm and success—by reading the new booklet, YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE, which gives complete instructions on how to overcome such wearisome speaking qualities as tonelessness, dullness and lack of proper modulation. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c in coin, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ridgeley Senior Play Friday

A three-act comedy entitled "Love Is in the Air,' will be presented by the Senior Class of Ridgeley High School Friday at 8:15 p. m. in the school auditorium.

The plot revolves around the Truitt household with the adult preoccupation and youthful frustrations of a growing family.

Gladys played by Violet Leighty, hasn't been able to talk Roscoe, Louis Margherita, into proposing. Maggie, Jo An Dixon discovers that every boy she tries to invite to the Girl Scout wiener roast suddenly develops a toothache. Gert Truitt, Mary Lynn Baker, goes about the house singing, "You Are My Song of Love," hoping her husband, Elmer, Forrest Taylor, will be more romantic. Clarence, Robert Krampf believes the romances of the younger Truitts might improve if their parents set a better example.

Others characters are Gramps, Thomas Morris; Hugo, Jerry Shanholtz; Beanie Weaver, William Simpson; Jackie, Loretta Phillips; Poodles, Helen Greene; and the three "lady buffaloes," June Spriggs, Shirley Kelso and Betty Carder.

Fined After Mishap

Ellis T. Sneathen, RFD 4, city, was fined $10 and costs yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court on a reckless driving charge following an accident yesterday shortly after midnight.

Authorities said Sneathen rammed a taxi cab at the intersection of Baltimore and Mechanic Street. A passenger in the taxi, Mrs. Doreen Frey, 34, of 136 Karns Avenue, was taken to Sacred Heart Hospital for examination. She showed no apparent injuries.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—I realize fully the consequences of what I am about to do—I know I immediately will lose a good one per cent of my brave, embattled public—but nothing can be done about it. I must report truthfully today that I have been to the opera again and it is the same like always. It is ridiculous.

As befits an illiterate, I have been to the opera three times in my dark life. Once was at LaScala in Milan, where I saw two acts of "Sampson and Delilah" and then threw in the sponge and walked out and back to my hotel in the still, chill night, carefully hopping over the cracks in the sidewalk. The second time was in Rome where I saw "Tristan" and where again I walked out and the third time was the other night at the nationally-celebrated Metropolitan Opera House, at 39th Street and Broadway. I wasn't going to defy tradition. I walked out after one act and settled for the par instead of the birdie."

What I saw was "Tosca," and according to the dilettante on my left, it was big-league and the jugglers and acrobats—Dorothy Kirsten, Ferruccio Tagliavini and so on—were top-drawer.

The last time I had been in the Metropolitan's plush nickelodeon I had seen and heard L. Armstrong play some wicked trumpet and Coleman Hawkins cut four other tenor saxaphonists to ribbons, but in spite of that golden memory I was determined to go to "Tosca" with an open mind. You can't remain a mug all your life.

I tried. I seated myself carefully in the orchestra circle, looked a little wistfully at the Diamond Horseshoe, noted the standees, four deep and reasonably attentive, smelled the gardenia perfume that always overpowers and upsets me, watched the curtain go up on a handsome and undoubtedly expensive setting—and then suddenly, surely, found myself right back in the old mood. They had led me to the watering-hole but once again I found myself not thirsty.

The musical virtues of opera I leave to others to discuss. Generally speaking, I am averse to the human voice lifted in song being considered art. However, I have seen hundreds of plays and acted in a few myself (I was the White Rabbit in "'Alice," in grammar school) and I have a fair understanding of believable drama. I have yet to see any of the stuff on an operatic stage.

There was, for instance, Miss Dorothy Kirsten, reported to be a soprano of considerable stature, clad in a reddish brown wig and hamming it up to beat all. I am not being vitriolic; I am forced to report that Miss Kirsten, between arias, did everything but bite her handkerchief and roll her eyeballs. She was not alone, however. Everybody on the stage was exaggerating every move, every gesture, and if they had loosed a pack of John Carradines and given them carte blanche.

I hadn't seen anything like it since the "Birth of a Nation." The movies have not come so far along the path of intelligent entertainment as might be wished—and yet if these operatic didoes were permitted on film, Darryl Zanuck would be peddling apples at Hollywood and Vine tomorrow and television would have a clear field. The worst Randolph Scott or Betty Grable cinema had a considerable dramatic edge over "Tosca" as performed by the Metropolitan chorus boys ingenues and lyric tenors.

The entrance of the villain was right out of "East Lynne"; he turned up in black costume and beetling brow and did everything but stroke his mustache in sinister mediation. Later on there was a kind of Greek chorus of men and women in what seemed to be red and purple flannel nighties and finally the curtain dropped on act one. It had been up for one hour.

I squared my shoulders manfully and slipped through the entre'acte crowds in the lobby, into the silent night outside. "Isn't it wonderful?" I heard one blonde say to her escort. It reminded me of the time I saw Johnny Ray sing at the Copa and I heard a similar remark. I had to look back at Ray to make sure I saw the same thing the dame saw.

That all these melancholy remarks point out the basic defects in my character is, of course, understood. The old opera house was packed to the rafters and likely will be for the rest of the winter. I am alone in my baffled soliloquy, a forlorn man against the sky, conscious of his cultural faults. However, the die is cast. Tomorrow, I hunt out a good movie. Water finds its own level.

Elks Make Visit To Johnstown Lodge

The entrance of the villain was right out of "East Lynne"; he turned up in black costume and beetling brow and did everything but stroke his mustache in sinister mediation. Later on there was a kind of Greek chorus of men and women in what seemed to be red and purple flannel nighties and finally the curtain dropped on act one. It had been up for one hour.

I squared my shoulders manfully and slipped through the entre'acte crowds in the lobby, into the silent night outside. "Isn't it wonderful?" I heard one blonde say to her escort. It reminded me of the time I saw Johnny Ray sing at the Copa and I heard a similar remark. I had to look back at Ray to make sure I saw the same thing the dame saw.

That all these melancholy remarks point out the basic defects in my character is, of course, understood. The old opera house was packed to the rafters and likely will be for the rest of the winter. I am alone in my baffled soliloquy, a forlorn man against the sky, conscious of his cultural faults. However, the die is cast. Tomorrow, I hunt out a good movie. Water finds its own level.

Elks Make Visit To Johnstown Lodge

Officers of Lodge 63, BPO Elks, went to Johnstown, Pa., Lodge last night to officiate at a ritual.

Making the trip were Exalter Ruler Earl M. Nonnenmann; Joseph Stakem, William Aumiller, William Hixenbaugh, John M. Robb, Randolph Jewell and Joseph H. Bedinger, organist.

Because of the Johnstown visit, the regular lodge meeting has been postponed until today at 8 p. m., Nonnenmann said.

Saturday at 9:30 p.m., the local lodge will be host to Frostburg Elks at an open house and dance. Joe Schupfers Orchestra will play. Reservations will be accepted.

During the evening, the newly-organized "63" Male Chorus will entertain.

Preceding the open house, Cumberland and Frostburg Elks will meet in a bowling match at 7:30 on the local lodge alleys.

Smith Triplets To Appear On TV

Cumberland's musical Smith triplets, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Smith, 607 Shriver Avenue, have been invited to participate in a televised amateur program Sunday in Pittsburgh.

The three 15-year-old girls, who were auditioned last week for the program sponsored by a Pittsburgh jewelery company, will appear on the Wilkins Amateur Hour, Pittsburgh, Channel 2, from 6 to 7 p. m. Sunday, their mother said last night.

The amateur hour, a weekly program, once each year is especially set aside for the participation of twins and triplets, Mrs. Smith pointed out.

After obtaining particulars about the contest for Wilda Rita, Wilma Rae and Willa Royce, Mrs. Smith said she received a letter requesting the girls to appear in Pittsburgh for their audition. They were then informed they would be on the Sunday program.

The three girls, all sopnomores at Allegany High School, will play accordions and, because the date is the 11th anniversary of Pearl Harbor Day, they have picked a medley of armed forces songs for their number.

Breedlove Convicted In Bus Accident

Hoye Worth Breedlove, 18, Cresaptown, whose car crashed against a loaded school bus Tuesday on Valley Road, was fined $17.20 yesterday morning in Trial Magistrates Court on two state motor charges.

The bus operator, Leslie Ray Mauk, 51, RD 3, city, had a reckless driving charge dismissed.

Breedlove paid $11.45 for reckless driving and $5.75 for driving on a 30-day card while not accompanied by a licensed driver.

Police said Breedlove apparently skidded on snow and hit the front of the bus. A door on the car was torn off and Breedlove was thrown from the vehicle, but he escaped injury.

Resurfacing Slated When Weather Breaks

The Street Department is getting ready to have two resurfacing jobs done when the weather breaks, Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, announced yesterday.

Only two projects will be possible with the $7,000 available. They include one block of Washington Street between Prospect Square and Smallwood Street, and Willowbrook Road, from Baltimore Avenue east to within 200 feet of the city limits.

The Cumberland Contracting Company recently realigned curbs on the west side of the Washington Street block and the Board of Education is expected to make similar repairs on curbing its property in preparation for the resurfacing.

Baby Sitter Lists Available Here

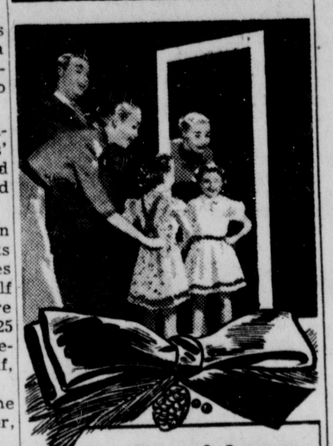

Approximately 100 baby sitters have signed up for work under a program sponsored by the Recreation Department as a service to parents of the community.

Robert E. Pence, recreation director, said a list of the sitters' names including address and phone number may be obtained from the office.

Rates for sitters are 35 cents an hour until midnight, and 50 cents an hour after midnight. Rates paid will be to the nearest half hour or hour. Half hour rates are 20 cents before midnight and 25 cents after midnight. For any period less than an hour and a half, the fee will be 50 cents.

Suitable transportation home should be arranged for the sitter, Pence said.

The average Englishman drinks about 11 pounds of tea every year.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK — (INS) — "Dear Sir," begins a letter which must somehow have been held up at the postage-needed office, for I never received it. "It has been some time since we heard about your children. Are they still living with you, or would you know?"

Still living with me. And none of them doing a lick of work. One of them won't even read the want ads. Can't read.

One of them has been an especial headache recently. Kid named Barry. He learned to whistle. Probably something he picked up in the school bus. Not just a melodic whistle; one of those purse-lipped jobs that could flag down a cab at 10,000 paces. Or bring the U.S.S. United States to a grinding stop off Ambrose Light.

"Mother's whistler," his mother, a well-known art-collector (collected Art Schmidt, Art Herman, Art Flynn, Art Bergman, Art Eisenhower, Art MacArthur, Art Summerfield, and Art Ross at her last party) calls him.

At the request of neighbors we now limit him to six hours of whistling every day. It places a considerable strain on him and this frustration may have dire effects. Once, when he indicated as a very small child that he was going to be a southpaw, I tried to coax him out of the habit by breaking his left arm.

But all this succeeded in doing was to make him stutter and give him a warped view on how to throw a curve. He throws them straight up in the air. They go up and come down like a bent flagpole. Know of any league where the hitters bat from a second story window.

The only time this child stops whistling voluntarily is on television. He's on a local program every Saturday at 5 o'clock from Flag's Dog School. He and some other children, including Bob Kintner's beautiful daughter, are being taught to behave by dogs. At least that seems to be the theme of the show.

It is an obedience training school ostensibly for dogs, but it has worked out so well on this child we think it would be a good idea to get a puppy after Susie(the dog) graduates and send Dennis to the school; then when Dennis' dog has finished educating him, get another and send Debby to the school with same. An old dog can teach a new kid a lot of tricks, I always say.

Dickson Hartwell has a piece in the current Reader's Digest that gives the scope of these new obedience school for dogs: More than 300 of them now, all more or less operating under the set of rules which were obtained in 1933 from the Associated Sheep, Police and Army Dog Society in England by a lady named Helen Whitehouse Walker, who lives in Mt. Kisco, N. Y. Maybe someday there will be compulsory education for dogs, with police dogs serving as truant officers.

At the Flag School, Susie (no quiz-dog, she) has somehow learned to heel, sit, lie down, come when called, and hold her right profile up when the TV camera is on her. Barry has learned even more. In addition to learning how to handle the dog, he has learned to stop whistling for at least the limited period the program is on the air. Several neighbors have approached me with the suggestion that we chip in and buy an additional 15 minutes of TV time, to keep him silent that much longer.

Would like to report briefly on Debby, too. The Irish have long been known as the true protectors of the English tongue. Nowhere is English spoken so purely and musically. When Debby was kind enough to join our fold, after spending the first two years of her life in Ireland, she spoke a flawless mixture of Gaelic and English. But, Alack, the new world has taken its linguistic toll. She was running with Susie the other day when a great howl came from the little fox terrier. Debby was stricken, and tearfully reported, "I runded and kicked she's feet."

But one great slice of the ould sod remains in her, two years and more after leaving it. In a brief period recently she scissored a shower curtain in half, painted a picture on the wallpaper, broke a toy or two and removed the head from the stuffed canary. Confronted with a detailed list of her crimes she burst into tears for a good three seconds, then smiled, kissed her parental prosecutor, and said, "That's all right, I forgive you."

Old Germans Defeat Clowns, 58 - 57

Wayne Boor's Goal Decides Initial Game

Score Tied 12 Times In Thriller Played Before 537 Patrons

Wayne Boor's field goal in the closing seconds of play enabled the Cumberland Old Germans to eke out a 58-57 decision over the Broadway Clowns in a thriller last night that marked the official opening of the 1952-53 basketball season at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

A gathering of 537 paying patrons turned out for the pro lid-lifter and witnessed a good ball game in which the score was deadlocked on twelve different occasions. At no time in the contest was their more than six points separating the teams and that was early in the third stanza when the Brewers held the long end of a 34-28 count. The score was knotted up at 4, 9, 16, 18 and 20 in the first half and at 25, 35, 37, 42, 44, 48 and 50 in the last two periods.

Final Quarter Is Close

With the count standing 50-50 in the final period and 5:06 left to play, Ralph Sealy's fielder and Kennedy's free throw gave the Clowns a 53-50 edge. Roy Lester, Allegany High grid mentor and former West Virginia University cager, then sent the locals ahead at 54-53 with two free throws and a layup goal. With 1:30 remaining Bill Dumpson sent Broadway to the fore with a field goal but two foul shots by Lester gave O.G. the lead again at 56-55. It looked as though a field goal by Sealy had settled the issue but with seconds left to play Boor connected with a sensational running shot to sew up the game for the locals.

Boor, whose shot won the game, was playing his first pro game in Cumberland. He is a son of Willie Boor, one-time star of the famed Keyser Collegians, and after being graduated from Keyser High School Wayne played football at Mississippi State and basketball at Tulsa University.

Win Game At Foul Line

The Old Germans were outscored from the field 20 to 17 by the New Yorkers but their margin of victory came at the foul line where they meshed 24 of 41 shots while the negro aggregation was converting 17 of 32 tries. Forty-two personal fouls were called on the teams—24 on the visitors and 18 on the Brewers. The only player ejected on six personals was Bill Dumpson, of the Clowns, who made his exit in the final heat with the score 55-54 in favor of Broadway.

Player manager Bob Pence headed the local attack with 16 points, including seven field goals. Sealy, Johnson and Dumpson accounted for 34 of the Clowns' points.

Second Loss In 26 Games

The loss was the second in 26 games for the Clowns since their opener November 4. Their other setback came at the hands of the Lennox, Mass., Merchants. Last season the Clowns defeated the Spas here by the score of 44-36.

Pence, Clevenger, Lester and Boor played outstanding ball for the Old Germans who flashed exceptionally good teamwork in the opener. Dumpson, Dealy and Johnson were the Clowns' best bets.

Maloy Repeats On All-Eastern

Princeton Lands Four On Team

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Charles (Chuck) Maloy, Holy Cross' passing wizard, and a pair of big double duty ends, Fran McPhee of Princeton and Ed Bell of Pennsylvania, were repeaters today on the Associated Press' 1952 All-East football team.

The squad was picked after consultation with coaches of the Ivy League and Eastern independents.

Princeton placed four men on the honor squad to lead all others.

In addition to McPhee, Princeton gave the mythical team its fullback, Homer Smith; a defensive guard, Grad Glass, and the defensive safety man, Edgar Jannotta.

Rounding out the attacking backfield with Maloy and Smith were Richard Clasby of Harvard, and Gene Filipski of Villanova.

McPhee and Bell were given the defensive end posts, leaving the offensive flanks to Yale's Ed Woodsum and Columbia's Al Ward.

There is only one sophomore on the squad but he is far from being a fuzz-faced youngster. He is Eldred Kraemer, 220-pound tackle for Pittsburgh.

He paid with William Hegarty, another two-platoon player from Villanova, with the offensive guard posts going to Chet Millett of Holy Cross and Bill Skyinskus of Syracuse and the center spot to Jim Dooley of Penn State.

Syracuse's Bobby Fleck throws his 256 pounds into one deefnsive tackle while the other position went to Penn's John Shanafelt. The defensive guards are Dave Eisenhauer, a standout from Navy, and Glass, a veteran.

Peter Schoderbek of Penn State and Joe Schmidt of Pitt were solid choices for the linebacker roles while other deefnsive secondary positions went to Joe Fortunato of Yale, Al Simmons of Colgate and Jannotta.

As You Were

(This is the 19th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

It's about time for the ladies to crash this column. You've seen my name in the headlines lately and I've turned in some mighty nice scores. I was a member of championship field ball and basketball teams almost 20 years ago. I really hit the jackpot in 1937 when I scored 222 points for the champs and led the scorers in the W.M.I. basketball circuit. Last summer I played in Queens Softball League. I hope to play basketball during the coming season. What's my name?

Mrs. Elsie McKee, of course. Remember Elsie Morton of Central High School (Lonaconing) teams of the past. Her name appears at the top of the bowling league averages now. And she's still pro-Central Lunch softball team last summer. The photo was taken 18 years ago.

28 Deer Killed On Third Day; Allegany County Total Is 160

10 Bucks Are Checked At Lewis'; 9 At State Police; 7 At Shipway's

Twenty-eight deer were reported killed in Allegany County on the third day of the six-day open season on bucks, bringing the three-day total for the county to 160. The six-day record is 210 kills.

Lewis' Store in Oldtown checked in the most Allegany County bags yesterday with 10. Nine were registered at State Police barracks in LaVale, seven at Shipway's Inn and two in Westernport.

A Garrett County kill also was recorded at Shipway's by Gradon Dunlap while four Garrett deer were reported to Westernport Police. Powers' Service Station in Hancock checked and weighed 10 deer but none were from Allegany County.

A father-son combination registered the largest kills of the day with both being checked in at Oldtown. Floyd T. Buser and his son Floyd of Oldtown bagged the pair of top-weights, both on Green Ridge which seemed to be the favorite spot for hunters yesterday. Ten of the 28 kills were reported from Green Ridge.

Floyd, Sr., brought down an 8-point buck weighing 161 pounds and Floyd Jr., downed an 8-pointer weighing 155 pounds.

Although the season includes bows and arrows none of the bucks have been reported slain by that method.

Maloy Repeats On All-Eastern

Princeton Lands Four On Team

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Charles (Chuck) Maloy, Holy Cross' passing wizard, and a pair of big double duty ends, Fran McPhee of Princeton and Ed Bell of Pennsylvania, were repeaters today on the Associated Press' 1952 All-East football team.

The squad was picked after consultation with coaches of the Ivy League and Eastern independents.

Princeton placed four men on the honor squad to lead all others.

In addition to McPhee, Princeton gave the mythical team its fullback, Homer Smith; a defensive guard, Grad Glass, and the defensive safety man, Edgar Jannotta.

Rounding out the attacking backfield with Maloy and Smith were Richard Clasby of Harvard, and Gene Filipski of Villanova.

McPhee and Bell were given the defensive end posts, leaving the offensive flanks to Yale's Ed Woodsum and Columbia's Al Ward.

There is only one sophomore on the squad but he is far from being a fuzz-faced youngster. He is Eldred Kraemer, 220-pound tackle for Pittsburgh.

He paid with William Hegarty, another two-platoon player from Villanova, with the offensive guard posts going to Chet Millett of Holy Cross and Bill Skyinskus of Syracuse and the center spot to Jim Dooley of Penn State.

Syracuse's Bobby Fleck throws his 256 pounds into one deefnsive tackle while the other position went to Penn's John Shanafelt. The defensive guards are Dave Eisenhauer, a standout from Navy, and Glass, a veteran.

Peter Schoderbek of Penn State and Joe Schmidt of Pitt were solid choices for the linebacker roles while other deefnsive secondary positions went to Joe Fortunato of Yale, Al Simmons of Colgate and Jannotta.

As You Were

(This is the 19th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

It's about time for the ladies to crash this column. You've seen my name in the headlines lately and I've turned in some mighty nice scores. I was a member of championship field ball and basketball teams almost 20 years ago. I really hit the jackpot in 1937 when I scored 222 points for the champs and led the scorers in the W.M.I. basketball circuit. Last summer I played in Queens Softball League. I hope to play basketball during the coming season. What's my name?

Mrs. Elsie McKee, of course. Remember Elsie Morton of Central High School (Lonaconing) teams of the past. Her name appears at the top of the bowling league averages now. And she's still pro-Central because she played with the Central Lunch softball team last summer. The photo was taken 18 years ago.

Frederick Ends Perfect Grid Year, Tops Southern, 39-0

FREDERICK, Md., Dec. 3 (AP) — Frederick High wound up a perfect football season tonight by defeating Southern High of Anne Arundel County, 39-0.

The win gave Frederick a 10-0 record for the year, equalling the best in recent Maryland scholastic history.

28 Deer Killed On Third Day; Allegany County Total Is 160

10 Bucks Are Checked At Lewis'; 9 At State Police; 7 At Shipway's

Twenty-eight deer were reported killed in Allegany County on the third day of the six-day open season on bucks, bringing the three-day total for the county to 160. The six-day record is 210 kills.

Lewis' Store in Oldtown checked in the most Allegany County bags yesterday with 10. Nine were registered at State Police barracks in LaVale, seven at Shipway's Inn and two in Westernport.

A Garrett County kill also was recorded at Shipway's by Gradon Dunlap while four Garrett deer were reported to Westernport Police. Powers' Service Station in Hancock checked and weighed 10 deer but none were from Allegany County.

A father-son combination registered the largest kills of the day with both being checked in at Oldtown. Floyd T. Buser and his son Floyd of Oldtown bagged the pair of top-weights, both on Green Ridge which seemed to be the favorite spot for hunters yesterday. Ten of the 28 kills were reported from Green Ridge.

Floyd, Sr., brought down an 8-point buck weighing 161 pounds and Floyd Jr., downed an 8-pointer weighing 155 pounds.

Although the season includes bows and arrows none of the bucks have been reported slain by that method.

Fire-Delayed Hunting Seasons To Be Extended

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—States forced to suspend their hunting and fishing season because of forest fire hazards during the dry fall will be granted an extension of their waterfowl hunting season this year.

Albert M. Day, director of the government's Fish and Wildlife Service, said today:

"These states can extend their waterfowl hunting season for as many days as they were forced to close down provided the season ends by Jan. 10."

Day said he was not certain which states would be affected but he believed they would include New Hampshire, New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Missouri and Kansas.

Get Anti-Stalling Esso Extra Gasoline

FOR FAST STARTS . . . QUICK WARM-UP

Anti-Stalling is another big reason Esso Extra performs best in 9 out of 10 cars all year 'round

Stalling in cool, damp weather is caused by carburetor icing. You don't have to put up with this annoyance. For starting power that gets your engine going at a touch and keeps it going, try Anti-Stalling Esso Extra . . . the only gasoline that effectively combats cold engine stalling.

It's another big extra for your money in Esso Extra — the premium gasoline long famous for quick starting, fast warm-up, high anti-knock power, and long mileage! No wonder more motorists buy Esso Extra than any other premium gasoline in the area served by Esso Dealers.

While you're at your Esso Dealer's there's certainly no better time to let him give your car a complete lubrication and careful check-up for the cold weather driving you'll be doing.

Detroit's Automotive Engineers say that cold-engine stalling has been a persistent problem for years. Under certain conditions, powerful gasolines required for today's high-compression engines evaporate and freeze moisture out of the air, "icing up" the carburetor and causing temporary stalling. This stalling is practically eliminated by the new Esso Extra Gasoline. (No gasoline, of course, can correct stalling caused by mechanical faults or electrical failure.)

Cubs Buy McCullough

PHOENIX, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs today acquired veteran Catcher Clyde McCullough from the Pittsburgh Pirates in a trade for Pitcher Dick Manville and an undisclosed sum of cash.

Duke Center Voted Top Blocker In Loop

GREENSBORO, N. C., Dec. (AP) —Louis Tepe, captain and center of Duke's Southern Conference football champions, was named today the best blocker in the conference by the Southern Conference Sports Writers Association.

The 6-1, 193-pound senior from Englewood, N. J. was top man in a brisk three-cornered race. He polled 68 points in a vote of 58 association members and conference coaches. Second with 64 points was Hootie Johnson, South Carolina fullback. Last year's winner, Duke Fullback, Jack Kistler, was third with 63 points.

Fire-Delayed Hunting Seasons To Be Extended

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—States forced to suspend their hunting and fishing season because of forest fire hazards during the dry fall will be granted an extension of their waterfowl hunting season this year.

Albert M. Day, director of the government's Fish and Wildlife Service, said today:

"These states can extend their waterfowl hunting season for as many days as they were forced to close down provided the season ends by Jan. 10."

Day said he was not certain which states would be affected but he believed they would include New Hampshire, New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Missouri and Kansas.

Conatser To Scout

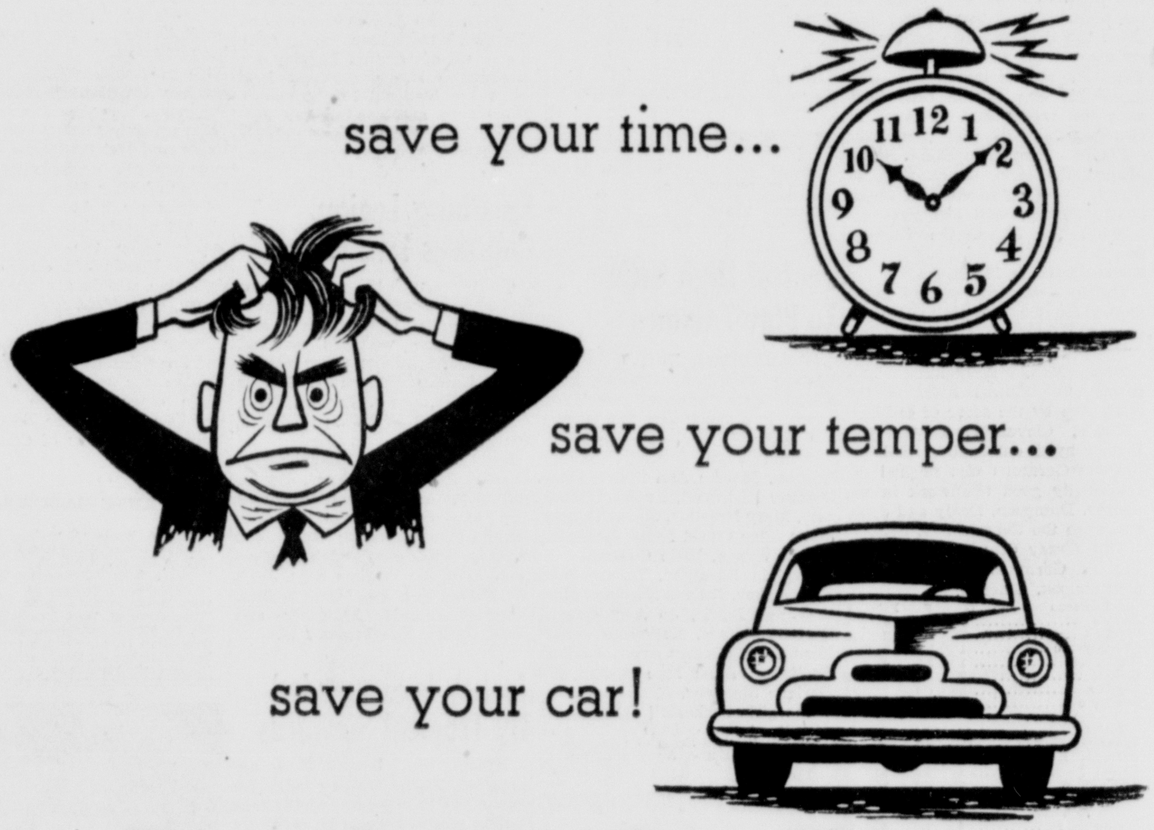

PHOENIX, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies today announced the signing of Bruce Conatser, former Cleveland Indians' outfielder, as scout.

Duke and Navy have been football opponents 12 times. The two teams first met in 1927 when Blue Devil coach Bill Murray was a freshman at Duke.

Get Anti-Stalling Esso Extra Gasoline

FOR FAST STARTS . . . QUICK WARM-UP

Anti-Stalling is another big reason Esso Extra performs best in 9 out of 10 cars all year 'round

Stalling in cool, damp weather is caused by carburetor icing. You don't have to put up with this annoyance. For starting power that gets your engine going at a touch and keeps it going, try Anti-Stalling Esso Extra . . . the only gasoline that effectively combats cold engine stalling.

It's another big extra for your money in Esso Extra — the premium gasoline long famous for quick starting, fast warm-up, high anti-knock power, and long mileage! No wonder more motorists buy Esso Extra than any other premium gasoline in the area served by Esso Dealers.

While you're at your Esso Dealer's there's certainly no better time to let him give your car a complete lubrication and careful check-up for the cold weather driving you'll be doing.

Detroit's Automotive Engineers say that cold-engine stalling has been a persistent problem for years. Under certain conditions, powerful gasolines required for today's high-compression engines evaporate and freeze moisture out of the air, "icing up" the carburetor and causing temporary stalling. This stalling is practically eliminated by the new Esso Extra Gasoline. (No gasoline, of course, can correct stalling caused by mechanical faults or electrical failure.)

People are reading more newspapers than ever before in history

3,000 YEARS AGO the front-page news was pretty heavy, mainly because the cuneiform tablets were made of stone.

LONG BEFORE COLUMBUS SAILED, people discovered a whole new world when Gutenberg invented modern printing.

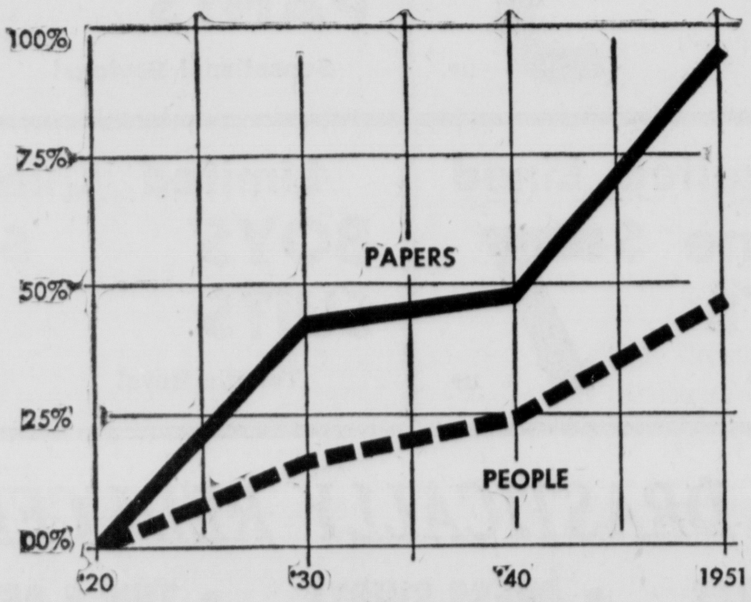

WHEN FREEDOM WAS FIGHTING for a foothold in colonial America, one of its strongest weapons was the newspaper of the day.

GENTLEMEN PREFERRED NEWSPAPERS in the Jazz Age — and ladies did, too! Even though infant radio squalled so lustily.

NEWEST THING on the American scene is TV, which means even more exciting things for people to read about — in newspapers.

CIRCULATION OF NEWSPAPERS in the United States has grown twice as fast as population. In 1920 the population was 106 million; today it's 155 million — 47% growth. In 1920 weekday newspaper circulation was about 28 million; today it's 54 million — an increase of 94%!

Today more people are reading more newspapers than ever before. In fact, the sale of newspapers has grown faster than population, as the chart at the left shows.

More than that, people are reading newspapers as thoroughly as ever. A survey of TV's effect on family life, called "Videotown 1952", conducted by Cunningham & Walsh, Inc., the well-known advertising agency, says:

> "Newspaper reading is just about the only regular activity which showed no change after the advent of TV."

This survey shows that among families with TV, just as many people read newspapers today as in the days before TV.

And that's not all: It shows that they spend just as much time with the newspaper as in the days before TV!

When the bicycle became a craze, some folks predicted it would take people out of the house and stop newspaper reading. They said the same about the flivver when it came along.

But the newspaper is a medium that grows stronger and stronger as people gain more and more interests in the world around them.

And ads in newspapers are more and more effective. Because they reach more people than any other medium. Because newspaper advertising has an urgency — a brass-tacks . . . local . . . down-to-earth quality that no other medium can match. And because they can be read any time. Anywhere.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

Wage Picture At Lonaconing Being Studied

Two City Policemen Concerned Mainly

LONACONING — Town officials have decided to investigate the municipal wage picture to see whether they can afford to give town employes a raise.

Members of the Mayor and Council, at a meeting Tuesday night, said they would like to raise some wages if the town can afford it.

Lonaconing's two policemen, who make $190 a month, are those principally concerned. The possibility of a salary increase came up when councilmen said it was hard to find an extra policeman to watch church school crossings on Main Street on Sunday mornings. The pay for the three-hour job is 80 cents per hour.

Mrs. Sally Schramm, town clerk, was instructed to write to other towns of comparable size to find out how much they are paying their town employes. Mrs. Schramm also will ask for data on the tax structure of the towns.

The Council will try to set up a wage scale for all employes at a meeting on December 30, and expects to take final action at the next regular session, on January 6.

Tonight, the Council will meet to go over items which James Getty, town attorney, has prepared for the consideration of the county delegation to the General Assembly when it meets next month.

Several routine items were discussed when the council met Tuesday night.

The Council made donations of $10 to the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association Christmas Seal fund, and $100 to the Christmas treat fund for the community children.

Town officials decided to take advantage of the services offered in a communication from the Health Department, after January 1. The Health Department will send a representative to show movies on the proper garbage disposal, and the town also will obtain information on local garbage problems.

The Street Lights Committee made their report to the Council on a new light installed recently.

Surfacing the street to the Tach-Fast factory was discussed. It was decided that with adverse weather conditions, the matter could not be acted upon at this time.

A building permit was issued to the First Pentecostal Assembly of God Church, Frost Street, to make an addition to the church property.

A traffic hazard was discussed by the council. At the Park Place intersection on East Main street, school buses stop and turn. The police officers will help with this situation and councilmen said every precaution will be taken for the safety of the school children. The school boy patrol also will be asked to help.

Cinder Crews To Be On Duty At Frostburg

Parking Ordinance Sought From Council

FROSTBURG — Paul Haberlein, street commissioner, announced Monday night at a meeting of the Mayor and City Council, that effective immediately a three-man cinder crew will be on duty every night throughout the winter from 5 p. m. to 1 a. m.

The crew will work at the city garage on maintenance and in case of snow or sleet will be available to cinder the main streets.

Haberlein also asked the council to pass an ordinance to prohibit parking on main streets from Grant to High, Broadway Street from Main to College Avenue, and Water Street from Main to College Avenue during the hours of 2 a. m. to 6 a. m.

This will permit the state snowplows to push snow to the sides, and then the city crews will be able to have the streets clear by the time business starts.

The council gave Haberlein its support for the ordinance and instructed City Attorney Edward J. Ryan to draw up the ordinance for passage.

Keyser Seeking Solution To Its Money Problems

Closed Session To Be Held Monday

KEYSER — City officials reviewing Keyser's gloomy financial situation, have scheduled a meeting for next Monday to try to find a way to run the town for the next four months on the available money.

The Mayor and Council, meeting Tuesday, agreed that spending will have to be curtailed considerably if the city is to get through the next few months without running out of funds.

Keyser's semi-annual share of the Mineral County taxes won't start rolling in until next May, but the city's spending already is ahead of schedule.

Councilmen decided to make next Monday's meeting a closed session, saying they wanted to be able to concentrate on the fiscal problem.

Last night, Finance Commissioner Paul Peters and City Clerk Arch A. Jordan were going over the city budget to see where they could start trimming.

Peters and Jordan hope to have ready a plan for cutting expenses before Monday's meeting.

In spite of the financial hacking, city officials predicted that some city employes will have to be furloughed so the town can squeak through the tight financial period ahead.

The city's problem is that state law limits the powers of taxation by municipalities. Only certain types of taxes can be imposed by West Virginia cities and towns. Coupled with this, the town had to lay out some unexpected money this year when the city reservoir had to be cleaned.

Wage Picture At Lonaconing Being Studied

Two City Policemen Concerned Mainly

LONACONING — Town officials have decided to investigate the municipal wage picture to see whether they can afford to give town employes a raise.

Members of the Mayor and Council, at a meeting Tuesday night, said they would like to raise some wages if the town can afford it.

Lonaconing's two policemen, who make $190 a month, are those principally concerned. The possibility of a salary increase came up when councilmen said it was hard to find an extra policeman to watch church school crossings on Main Street on Sunday mornings. The pay for the three-hour job is 80 cents per hour.

Mrs. Sally Schramm, town clerk, was instructed to write to other towns of comparable size to find out how much they are paying their town employes. Mrs. Schramm also will ask for data on the tax structure of the towns.

The Council will try to set up a wage scale for all employes at a meeting on December 30, and expects to take final action at the next regular session, on January 6.

Tonight, the Council will meet to go over items which James Getty, town attorney, has prepared for the consideration of the county delegation to the General Assembly when it meets next month.

Several routine items were discussed when the council met Tuesday night.

The Council made donations of $10 to the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association Christmas Seal fund, and $100 to the Christmas treat fund for the community children.

Town officials decided to take advantage of the services offered in a communication from the Health Department, after January 1. The Health Department will send a representative to show movies on the proper garbage disposal, and the town also will obtain information on local garbage problems.

The Street Lights Committee made their report to the Council on a new light installed recently.

Surfacing the street to the Tach-Fast factory was discussed. It was decided that with adverse weather conditions, the matter could not be acted upon at this time.

A building permit was issued to the First Pentecostal Assembly of God Church, Frost Street, to make an addition to the church property.

A traffic hazard was discussed by the council. At the Park Place intersection on East Main street, school buses stop and turn. The police officers will help with this situation and councilmen said every precaution will be taken for the safety of the school children. The school boy patrol also will be asked to help.

Cinder Crews To Be On Duty At Frostburg

Parking Ordinance Sought From Council

FROSTBURG — Paul Haberlein, street commissioner, announced Monday night at a meeting of the Mayor and City Council, that effective immediately a three-man cinder crew will be on duty every night throughout the winter from 5 p. m. to 1 a. m.

The crew will work at the city garage on maintenance and in case of snow or sleet will be available to cinder the main streets.

Haberlein also asked the council to pass an ordinance to prohibit parking on main streets from Grant to High, Broadway Street from Main to College Avenue, and Water Street from Main to College Avenue during the hours of 2 a. m. to 6 a. m.

This will permit the state snowplows to push snow to the sides, and then the city crews will be able to have the streets clear by the time business starts.

KEYSER — City officials reviewing Keyser's gloomy financial situation, have scheduled a meeting for next Monday to try to find a way to run the town for the next four months on the available money.

The Mayor and Council, meeting Tuesday, agreed that spending will have to be curtailed considerably if the city is to get through the next few months without running out of funds.

Keyser's semi-annual share of the Mineral County taxes won't start rolling in until next May, but the city's spending already is ahead of schedule.

Councilmen decided to make next Monday's meeting a closed session, saying they wanted to be able to concentrate on the fiscal problem.

Last night, Finance Commissioner Paul Peters and City Clerk Arch A. Jordan were going over the city budget to see where they could start trimming.

Peters and Jordan hope to have ready a plan for cutting expenses before Monday's meeting.

In spite of the financial hacking, city officials predicted that some city employes will have to be furloughed so the town can squeak through the tight financial period ahead.

The city's problem is that state law limits the powers of taxation by municipalities. Only certain types of taxes can be imposed by West Virginia cities and towns. Coupled with this, the town had to lay out some unexpected money this year when the city reservoir had to be cleaned.

Yanks In Britain

Money Big Cause Of Friction Between Americans, Britons

What happens when hundreds of American servicemen move into small English community? This third in a series of articles on anti-American feeling in Britain shows the difficulties the Americans encounter.

By ROBERT A. WIENER
INS Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (INS) — American servicemen and their families are "settling" by the thousands in British communities, but the process isn't easy.

Take the case of Sgt. and Mrs. Ransom H. Jenks, Jr., of Williamstown, Mass. They were married only last June and now live in Cambridge. He is an assistant supply sergeant at the nearby Mildenhall Air Base.

"One day," said Mrs. Jenks, "I priced a small piece of green moss in a shop and was told it was only sixpence (7 cents).

"A few days later when I went to buy it they charged me two shillings and sixpence (35 cents). I was also charged nearly double the price for some tomatoes I bought."

Sgt. Jenks, who accompanied his wife on the shopping trip, said he didn't protest because he didn't want to create a scene.

The couple also said Cambridge taxi drivers overcharge if they think they can get away with it. But Taxi Driver Ray Nightingale of Cambridge said the GI sometimes try to get by without paying their fare. He said:

"I've chased more than one GI around the Mildenhall Air Base trying to collect the fare. They ought to make them pay the fare at the base gate."

Police Sgt. Thomas Rigglesforth, in charge of law enforcement in the small towns of Milden hall and Lakenheath in East Anglia, commented:

"There's no anti-American feeling here at all. Occasionally a few Yanks will have too much to drink and we have to call the air police, but that doesn't create anti-American feeling in the town."

Mrs. Josephine Dohoney, of Harrisburg, Pa., wife of Capt. William Dohoney, an Air Force dentist, disagreed. She said:

"There's an anti-American feeling around Mildenhall but its not too bad. You can sense it among the shopkeepers. Although they'll wait on you they seem to resent your presence nevertheless."

One of the big causes of friction between American servicemen and Britons is money. On pay days the free-spending GIs flock to towns near their bases. After a week or so they begin appearing in diminishing numbers until the next pay day. In some towns this has a considerable effect on local business.

The British like to use the phrase "overnight millionaires" to describe American servicemen.

The fact that married GIs can afford to pay more for housing than British civilians has caused resentment in many localities. Housing is still critical throughout Britain due to wartime bombing losses and tight restrictions on new building.

Often when it is a question of a Briton or an American renting a house the American wins because he can pay more.

Usually where a GI and a Briton live in comparable housing the serviceman is paying more—sometimes two or three times as much. There is no rent ceiling in Britain on furnished houses or apartments.

American airmen in Britain draw between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 a month in pay and allowances. This is more than welcome by the dollar-short British government. But it is the cause of resentment in many individual Britons whose wages are much lower than the GIs.

Stanley C. Smith, owner of two small restaurants in the East Anglia town of Bury St. Edmunds, echoed this when he said:

"The trouble with the Yanks is that they feel we're all beggars. They think they can buy everything with money, including women, and rationed goods for which they have no coupons. I'd rather serve one English Tommy than ten Yanks."

One tavernkeeper in Bury St. Edmunds commented bitterly:

"I've no love for the Americans. When they come in I serve them, but I don't welcome them. All they're looking for is a skirt."

But not everybody in Bury St. Edmunds holds the same view. The Rev. V. H. Doornkamp, pastor of the Baptist Chapel who spent the war years in Holland, said there is no anti-American feeling among the "intelligent people" in the community.

"We know and appreciate why the Americans are here," he said. "It's only a few who present any problem. I have many American servicemen and their wives who attend church regularly and they are well-liked by the townspeople."

According to the Air Force, about 7,000 American servicemen have their wives in Britain. The great majority of the wives are American.

From the disciplinary standpoint, the married GIs who live in towns near their bases present no problem. They are looked upon by local officials and military authorities as a group which generally does more to foster good Anglo-American relations than do unmarried servicemen.

A town official at Warrington, near the big Burtonwood base in the Midlands, commented:

"The American airman and his wife and child are now accepted at Warrington as part of the scene. If they departed there would be much sorrow."

Many children of American servicemen are attending English schools. This generally leads to a greater mingling of the GIs and his wife with the local population and creates better understanding between them.

In many instances there is no friction between GIs and civilians at all. Commented one shopkeeper:

"We long ago got used to the Americans and they've gotten used to us."

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3 (INS)—No one will admit it officially, but I can tell you that Charlton Heston will play Moses when C. B. De Mille puts his biblical spectacle, "The Ten Commandments," before the cameras.

Heston did a terrific job for C. B. in "The Greatest Show on Earth" — and once De Mille is sold on an actor, he's sold.

An interesting angle is that research reveals that Heston's features and facial bone construction are very similar to the earliest descriptions of Moses.

Another thing I hear: De Mille will soon tip off actors and actresses he expects to use in his religious picture against appearing in risque roles in future productions. He doesn't want his players in objectionable roles playing at the same time as "The Ten Commandments."

My girl friend Jane Wyman is having her house painted preparatory to putting it on the market. She thinks it is too big even though her family has increased by a bridegroom (Freddie Karger) and his little girl, Terry, who is frequently with them.

Earlier in 1953, Jane reports to Warners for "So Big," Edna Ferber's hearttugger. Won't give her much time between pictures but she doesn't mind. The holidays are Karger's busy time with his band bookings.

Quentin Reynolds' stepdaughter, Joan Reynolds Howard (her mother is lovely Virginia Peine), is in Hollywood to resume her career. With her is her five months old daughter.

Both Paramount and 20th are interested in making a test of Joan, who looks so much like her mother.

When I talked with her she said, "When I married Frank Howard I gave up a contract at 20th to live in the East with him. We are separated now, chiefly because he doesn't believe that I can be an actress and a good mother at the same time. Other girls do it—look at Jane Powell, Jeanne Crain, Maureen O'Sullivan and many many others who successfully combine motherhood with their careers."

Last Sunday Olivia De Havilland took her son, Benjy, and had tea with Joan Fontaine. This is news that makes me happier than anything I've heard in a long time.

The two girls had a nice talk and it looks as if this feud is ended. Livvie met Collier Young, Joan's bridegroom, as well as Martita, the little Peruvian girl whom Joan adopted.

Livvie hopes that Benjy may meet his little cousin, Deborah Dozier soon, and that little Debbie will visit her mother.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

A surprise twosome at the bantam Cock was Mary Castle and Merchant Jerry Ohrbach. Mary used to be Sy Bartlett's steady date, and of late Ohrbach has been seen with Lana Turner.

Trudy Marshall and Wealthy Meat Packer Phil Raffin expect their third child in April. Trudy just finished "The President's Lady."

Ham Fisher, of "Joe Palooka" fame, and Toni Seven are seeing New York together. At one time a handsome young senator was her constant companion.

While I was doing some night Christmas shopping in the toy department of a Beverly Hills shop, I saw Eddie Mannix looking at a toy train with all the excitement of a small boy.

Shopping at another Beverly Hills store I met up with Richard Basehart, who was proudly showing Virginia Zanuck and the clerks, myself, and everyone else in sight, a picture of his wife, Valentina Cortesa, and his baby son on the cover of an Italian magazine.

Six-year-old Heather MacRae, daughter of Sheila and Gordon MacRae, has the measles, but papa has had them so it's all right. P.S. So has Mama.

Nina "Honeybear" Warren, so pretty, at Ciro's with Joe Bihari, owner of Modern Records. Looks very much like a romance.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Trudy Marshall and Wealthy Meat Packer Phil Raffin expect their third child in April. Trudy just finished "The President's Lady."

Ham Fisher, of "Joe Palooka" fame, and Toni Seven are seeing New York together. At one time a handsome young senator was her constant companion.

While I was doing some night Christmas shopping in the toy department of a Beverly Hills shop, I saw Eddie Mannix looking at a toy train with all the excitement of a small boy.

Shopping at another Beverly Hills store I met up with Richard Basehart, who was proudly showing Virginia Zanuck and the clerks, myself, and everyone else in sight, a picture of his wife, Valentina Cortesa, and his baby son on the cover of an Italian magazine.

Six-year-old Heather MacRae, daughter of Sheila and Gordon MacRae, has the measles, but papa has had them so it's all right. P.S. So has Mama.

Nina "Honeybear" Warren, so pretty, at Ciro's with Joe Bihari, owner of Modern Records. Looks very much like a romance.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

STAG LINES for men

by Bert Bacharach

Formula for Fall

An exemplary outfit

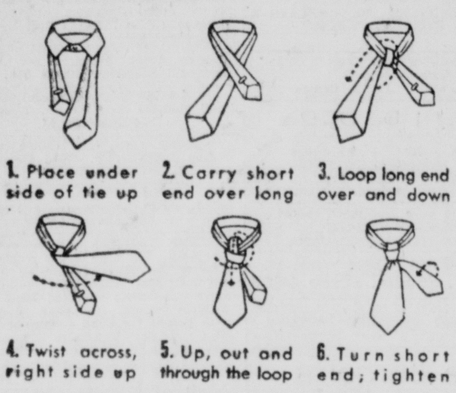

FASHION: Usually this space takes a look at a single item of men's wear each week. But here is an overall recipe for a first-rate informal dress-up outfit for fall. The ingredients, top to bottom: narrow snapbrim hat, rounded collar, straight tie, matching collar and tie pins and a navy blue sheen gabardine suit. Hollywood's David Brian (at right) tries the ensemble for size.

Motor Hints: Men who do a lot of driving tell me that a plain board against the back of the driver's seat keeps them from getting a tired back. . . . You can carry water to your car, if no bucket is handy, in one of those big hub caps. . . . Pieces of old carpet make good pads for polishing cars.

Clothes Care: Keep your hat well dusted at all times. In the rain, dust particles turn into discoloring mud. . . . If French cuffs are the least bit tight when pulled over the hands, do not take a chance of straining or breaking the cufflinks. Attach or detach the links after you have put the shirt on.

Odd Items: Talk about swank! A New York drugstore has a uniformed attendant to help you in and out of your seat—at the soda fountain! . . . A California furrier is showing men's ties and cufflinks made of mink! . . . A survey shows Mr. Average Man loses his temper six times weekly, while Mrs. Average Woman has only three outbursts!

Knot Lesson: The oft-neglected half-Windsor is often the best knot for certain ties—for instance, when the tie is too short to accommodate a full Windsor. It is also to be preferred when the tie is so heavy that a full Windsor would be too bulky. The drawings (at bottom) show how to tie this neat knot.

MAYOR EVES OUTLINES MILLION-DOLLAR PLAN

More Than Production Needed, du Pont Says

Clubs Told To Think Of Spiritual As Well As Material Values Here

"America cannot defend democracy solely by stepping up production," James Q. du Pont, administrative assistant in the Public Relations Department of E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company, said in a talk before Cumberland's service clubs yesterday at Central YMCA.

He explained that this ideological war can be won by democracy only if its followers are motivated by its spiritual as well as its material values.

"We are working while our Rome is burning," he said. "I believe that many more of us American business and professional men must take more time off from our work to think about our specific problem of the slow creeping fire of statism. Then, having thought, and thought deeply, we must devote a generous portion of our waking hours and energy to fighting in the battle for men's minds today."

Hypnotized By Work

He pointed out that there are too many business leaders who are dangerously hypnotized by a passionate reality for work. "Production is blinding us innocently, cost reduction by cost reduction, pay increase by pay increase to the rock of destruction.

"Too many people," he said, believe that the only necessary defense against communist ideas is a high standard of living in the United States. Coupled with this, he continued, is the conviction that the only weapon in the communist arsenal aside from the use of brute force is the appeal to the selfish nature of man.

"Communism," he declared, "can breed anywhere there is a spiritual vacuum; in dire poverty, in the middle class, or in the home and family of a multimillionaire. The pure Marxian Commie and the tyrant, or the despot, are both wide awake on this point. They fully realize that one unselfish convert is often worth 10,000 needy ones. The real value of such converts is that they 'catch fire' inside. They become crusaders with a mission. They are dedicated to a cause. They want to help others."

"And the path to almost every one of such subverted crusader's heart is a hypocritical appeal to the unselfish, the finer side of his make-up.

Must Live Together

"Too many of us," he emphasized, "are working while our house is, burning. We must take time off from work to think about these things. We must stop working productively and start thinking. In our production, he said, we turn a deaf ear to those who cry 'fire.' We say let the ministers and sociologists take care of it. But we all can help stop the threat of Communism.

"First of all," du Pont went on, "is that we can change and improve our actions. We can speak, write, broadcast." He told local business men they could utilize all the speaking and writing talent of the organizations to which they belong. We should live together.

"It will take men, not boys, on the bridge of business, men who can see into the darkness and curves ahead."

He pointed out that there are those who start educational programs and campaigns, but at the same time make a natural but unforgivable mistake. For their campaign themes they appeal to the selfish side of their audiences, appeals that work on the selfish and materialistic side of people. He gave examples like "free enterprise gives us this and that more than what Russia has.

"We are playing up the selfish too much," du Pont continued. "We should start to play up the unselfish side that we underrate so much.

To Fail Is Defeat

"The United States," he observed, "with its heritage of freedom tracing to the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, can make such an appeal to the unselfish in all honesty. To fail to do so is to invite defeat.

"I know the importance of television sets, bathtubs and automobiles. None the less, if we are honest with ourselves, we know it

Apple Growers Deny Fixing Fruit Prices

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Dec. 3 — An official of a Winchester fruit concern said today that his firm had prices similar to those of another company because of stiff competition — not because of any price-fixing deal.

J. P. Arthur, sales manager of the Shenandoah Valley Apple Cider and Vinegar Corp., told a Federal Trade Commission examiner that his firm had to consider the competition of National Fruit Products Co., located 30 feet across the street in Winchester.

The FTC has charged the Appalachian Apple Service, Inc., a combination of fruit growers, and five apple processing firms with conspiring to fix prices in violation of trade regulations.

Arthur testified that Shenandoah put out a price list identical with National's in 1950 because Shenandoah needed more apples than formerly due to an expansion of its plant.

Usually Paid Bonus

Prior to 1950, he said, 75 to 80 per cent of the apples purchased by Shenandoah were grown by persons financially interested in the plant. Before 1950, Shenandoah usually paid a bonus on apples during the season after negotiating for them at list price, he declared.

Arthur said no bonus was paid in 1950 or has been paid since. He added that Shenandoah still owes for some of the apples bought in 1950.

Others who testified at today's hearing were C. E. Johnson of Sperryville, an apple grower, and Roy McLanahan of Covesville, apple grower and broker. Both are members of the Virginia Apple Commission.

In reply to questions by government attorneys, Johnson testified he was a member of Appalachian Apple Service because of his service on the state commission. Virginia's seven apple commissioners are all directors of Appalachian.

Johnson said he received the price list issued by apple processors prior to the 1950 season and these were the prices paid for his apples.

Installment Payments

The government has charged that the price fixing occurred in 1950.

McLanahan maintained that the reason apple prices in his books were broken down into two columns was that payment was in two installments. The books indicated one sum equivalent to the list price of apples, and, in a separate column, listed an additional 43 cents.

Government attorneys asked if this 43 cents were not a hauling charge or some similar fee. McLanahan replied that it was part of the price paid for the apples and not a separate fee.

After today's hearing, the case was recessed for a month and will reconvene in Roanoke Jan. 5.

Hearing Called On Fluoridation Of City Water

Officials Will Act After Session Today

The Mayor and Commissioners will hold a public meeting at the City Hall at 1:45 p. m. today for a final airing of views on the proposed fluoridation of Cumberland's water supply.

Mayor Roy W. Eves called attention to this meeting last night during a discussion of city problems with the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce. He invited interested Jaycees to attend the session.

Some time ago the Jaycees adopted a resolution endorsing fluoridation of the city's water supply.

Mayor Eves observed that only two or three citizens have raised intense objection to him concerning the proposal which has been advocated as a means of reducing tooth decay, especially among children.

In response to a question from George R. Hughes, Jr., a Jaycee, Mayor Eves stated that he believed most of the objection he has heard were unfounded. He remarked that two large cities, Baltimore and Philadelphia, have just started fluoridation of their water supplies.

After today's hearing, the officials will decide whether to approve or reject the plan, Mayor Eves concluded.

Ten Youths Face Trial In Juvenile Case

Foster Homes Found For Deserted Tots

Police last night said they will summon at least ten more youths for Juvenile Court hearings in the delinquency case of a 15-year-old girl who was found abandoned, with her seven brothers and sisters, in a run-down South End home Monday.

Two men were arrested Tuesday on warrants charging they had carnal knowledge of the girl, and two others were picked up and held for investigation. All four were released yesterday pending further investigation.

Detective Lt. James E. Van said last night that "at least ten other boys under 18" would be summoned in the case whenever a hearing date in Juvenile Court is set.

The girl, who is being held in the county's Juvenile Detention quarters, is charged with being a delinquent minor, and the mother, in County Jail, is charged with contributing to the girl's delinquency.

Temporary lodgings were found for six of the other children, ranging in age from three to 12 years, by the Allegany County Welfare Board, and an 18-year-old sister was turned over to the Salvation Army.

Police Still Seek Girl Shoplifter

City Police last night were still trying to track down a 17-year-old girl shoplifter who walked out of Police Headquarters Monday night while she was waiting for officers to question her.

Detective Lt. James E. Van said he checked several leads as to the girl's whereabouts yesterday, but was unable to locate her.

The girl, who told police she was from Midland, escaped while officers were checking to see whether several items she was carrying when arrested had been stolen.

Officer Robert L. Gilpin, who nabbed the girl, said she had picked up several articles from counters in six Baltimore Street stores.

The girl slipped away through an unlocked door leading to the police chief's office, and then to the street, while officers were busy.

A police janitor saw the escape and notified police, but officers said the girl ran down Liberty Street to Baltimore Street and was lost in the Monday evening shopping crowd.

Chamber Is Not Sponsor Of Coupon Book Promotion

The Chamber of Commerce yesterday announced it is not sponsoring a merchandise coupon book promotion which is now under way in Cumberland.

Books of tickets which are being sold in the city, the Chamber said, entitle the buyer to "free" or "cut-rate" merchandise, service or admissions. A similar program was undertaken here last year.

The Chamber said many people seem to be under the impression that the Chamber or a local mercantile association is conducting the promotion. Chamber of Commerce spokesmen said the Chamber's Mercantile Bureau is not sponsoring the sale, has not endorsed the book, and has not assumed any responsibility.

According to the Chamber, the books are sold by a telephone caller who tells the person called that he has been chosen as a recipient of a ticket book, for a stated fee.

Public Meeting Set For Dec. 11

Westernport citizens will meet next week to air their views on a proposed new city charter which the General Assembly will be asked to grant the town when it convenes next month.

Mayor Okey E. Michael has called a public meeting for 7:30 p. m. Thursday, Dec. 11, in Bruce High School auditorium. Members of the Town Council, Town Attorney Horace P. Whitworth Sr., and Horace P. Whitworth Jr., chairman of the county's delegation to the General Assembly, will attend.

The proposed charter would extend the town's boundaries for the first time since 1886, would change the date of town elections, abolish an antiquated primary election system, raise the salaries of the Town Council, and authorize the town to set up a building and zoning code and to operate a parking lot.

Town Attorney Whitworth will read a draft of the charter proposal at the meeting so that Westernport residents may express their opinions before the younger Whitworth takes the final draft to Annapolis.

Would Annex Franklin

Westernport's present charter was enacted in 1920, and was amended in 1922, 1924, 1933 and in 1945. The new proposal would repeal the amended 1920 charter and re-enact a new one including the new additions. The proposal has been in preparation for several months.

As it now stands, the bill would outline the town limits this way: Hammond's Addition on the west side of town, including all territory east of an alley west of Gay Street and south of Chestnut; southern line through Greene's Addition along an alley between Roosevelt and Garfield streets; annexation of Franklin and Brophystown as far north as Gannon's store.

Change Election Date

Date of the town election would be changed from the last Monday in March to the fourth Monday in May to coincide more nearly with the fiscal year, which ends June 30. Elected officials would assume office on the first Monday in June.

The present primary convention setup would be abolished. Instead candidates would enter their names by obtaining signatures of 50 registered voters on petitions for candidacy. A voter could sign one mayoral petition, four for councilmanic candidates.

Salaries of Councilmen would be raised from $100 to $250 a year, but the Mayor's $500 salary would remain unchanged. The tax year would be moved up a month to coincide with the fiscal year, and two registration days for town elections would be held, instead of one.

Inmate Will Go To Va. For Trial

Douglas Lurty Smith, a young Virginian who is serving a term in the Maryland Reformatory for Males at Breathedsville for a breaking and entering conviction here, has received permission to be transported to Manassas, Va., to testify Friday as a material witness in a trial involving homicide by automobile.

Associate Judge George Henderson has signed an order authorizing Virginia State Trooper John Dula to transport young Smith from Breathedsville to Manassas, Va., for the trial. He will be returned to the Reformatory immediately after the trial.

Judge Henderson acted after State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher filed a petition setting forth the facts in the case. Smith was sentenced in Allegany County Circuit Court after pleading guilty to breaking and entering the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company premises at Narrows Park and stealing goods valued at $540.98.

At the time of his conviction here, Smith was free under $500 bond as a material witness in the homicide trial at Manassas, Fletcher stated. Stanley A. Owens, Commonwealth's Attorney for Prince William County, Va., at Manassas, has requested Henry Russell Raymond, superintendent at the Reformatory, to permit Smith's transportation to Virginia for the trial Friday. Judge Henderson's order permits Smith to be taken to Manassas at Virginia's expense.

Smoke Causes Scare

East Side firemen were called to the home of John Oldaker, 220 Glenn Street, shortly before 5 p. m. yesterday when a kettle left on the kitchen range boiled dry and caused neighbors who saw the smoke to turn in an alarm.

Area Cub Scouts Planning Old-Fashioned Christmas

"An Old-Fashioned Christmas"—that is what approximately 450 area Cub Scouts in the 16 Packs of Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, are planning this month.

With the theme, "An Old-Fashioned Christmas," Cub Scouters will unlock a storehouse of ideas with leaders recalling the holidays of their youth.

In general, local Parks will feature the neighborliness of the Christmas season, the sharing with those who are in need, the friendliness of the family group, the community caroling, the taffy pulls, the pop corn and sleigh-ride parties.

Cub Scouts here of the Jewish faith along with others in the nation will interpret the theme as Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights. Hanukkah stands for religious liberty, and celebrates the victory of the Maccabees over the Syrian Empire 22 centuries ago.

During this festival, children play games, receive gifts, hold parties and present plays. Dens and Packs already have Hanukkah program ideas underway.

Holiday Astronomy

One of the games that local Cubs will be looking forward to is the holiday astronomy on Christmas night. Between 5 and 7 p. m. on Christmas night, Cubs will look for a bright star in the western twilight. It is the planet Venus, brightest in the sky.

A little left of Venus will glow the red planet Mars, paler but very like this planet, Earth. Cub leaders will then instruct the Cubs to swing a quarter turn to the left to see the moon, and just beyond it is the bright planet Jupiter, largest in the solar system.

Besides the many gifts that local Cubs will make at Den and Pack meetings, leaders have outlined numerous other items on the program. Among them is a visit to folks in the Pack's neighborhood who are confined. Boys will bring taffy, popcorn balls, or other Den-made sweets and Den-made tricks and puzzles. Cubs will be told that caroling spreads good-will not only to the shut-ins but to the families of the servicemen too.

World Friendship

Pack leaders will use the services of parents and boys desiring to help in the pack projects which will include collecting food, clothing and toys for the needy and raising money for the World Friendship Fund.

The elaborate Cub Scout program for December also includes plans for making gifts. Cub leaders said local cubs will make such gifts as a colorful beanbag for younger brother, a clay tile for mother's teapot, an ash tray for Dad, a hot dish holder, bookends, letter openers, a container for mother's odd buttons, pins, etc.

Local Cubs will also make homemade Christmas cards which they will letter and fill with color-in designs. Boys will use last year's Christmas cards, colored cord, ribbons, Christmas seals, etc.

As in past years, local Dens and Packs will have their individual Christmas trees, but this year decorations will be homemade by Cubs as in the "old-fashioned Christmas."

Boys will make wreaths, stand-up candles, Christmas symbols and silhouettes for windows, Christmas scenes for the mantle and table and a wide variety of tree ornaments.

Scouts Are Helpful

All through the season, Cubs will not forget that Scouts are helpful and kind. Cubs in December will prepare gift boxes of home-made cookies for veterans in hospitals, and will look for opportunities to help the Pack with its many Christmas programs and activities. These include helping the needy wherever possible.

At the same time, Cub leaders are busy preparing Christmas parties for their Dens or Packs. Names will be drawn so that each Cub will have a gift to wrap with a boy's name on it for Santa to deliver. One of the Pack's committeemen will dress as Santa Claus for the party and present the gifts near the Pack's tree. Also being planned are games, candies and nuts, old-time carols and surprise gifts.

At any rate, the plan for Cub Scouts this month is to have "An Old-Fashioned Christmas."

Youth Cleared Of Delinquency

Juvenile Magistrate Alban C. Thompson yesterday cleared a Flintstone youth of a charge of breaking and entering Saturday night.

Thompson said Dewey Lytle, 17, was found not guilty of a delinquency charge in which he was accused of entering a Flintstone home and setting fire to a set of curtains.

Thompson said earlier reports that Lytle's case was dismissed so he could enter the Navy were false and pointed out that the Navy cannot accept men in the service when enlistment is a condition of a court sentence.

Explaining the case, Thompson said Lytle had been to a dance in Flintstone and was going home in his father's car when snow on Polish Mountain caused his auto to stop. After attempting to make the hill several times, Lytle went to a friend's house to borrow chains.

After knocking several times, Lytle decided the boy's mother had retired so he went to the window of the friend's bedroom. After raising the window he ignited a match to see if his friend, Alvin Dolly, was in bed. As he held the match, the curtains near the window caught fire, but Lytle tore them down and extinguished the flames. A blind was left burning unknown by Lytle but it caused no damage.

Thompson said Lytle learned later that his friend's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dolly, were visiting the home and were sleeping in the younger brother's room.

Lytle was arrested Sunday by Trooper Robert D. Wolford.

Council Members Discuss Future Ideas For City

Jaycees Hear Details Of Improvements

Mayor Roy W. Eves outlined a $1,000,000 program of improvements for the city during a discussion at the monthly meeting of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce last night at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Mayor Eves and the city commissioners had been invited by the Jaycees to attend the meeting. The purpose was to give each official an opportunity to outline his or her responsibilities and to discuss future plans for the city.

Highlight of Mayor Eves' $1,000,000 program was the widening of Frederick Street to a width of 32 feet and making both Frederick and Bedford Streets one-way streets to facilitate the flow or traffic to and from Bedford Road.

The city official explained that the city will bear half of the cost of this improvement, the Federal government paying the other 50 per cent. Cost to the city will run between $200,000 and $250,000.

Other Projects Listed

A number of other street projects were listed by Mayor Eves in the million-dollar program. One of these was the proposed industrial highway in South Cumberland, linking Montreal Avenue and Fifth Street with Thomas Street. Others were extension of George Street, widening of parts of Thomas Street not already improved by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to make the width uniform and the widening of the one-block of narrow Franklin Street between Centre and Mechanic Streets.

The mayor noted that the city's flood control program also calls for construction of new bridges across Wills Creek and over the Potomac River to Ridgeley. Except for these flood control programs, funds for which already have been provided, the city will authorize the various projects individually as funds become available, he added.

Other proposals discussed by Mayor Eves included improvements at the airport, especially purchase of snow-removal equipment and repairs to hangars, and the acquisition of additional land for Constitution Park.

Three of the commissioners also outlined their ideas for the future. They were Mrs. Lucile Roeder, streets commissioner; John J. Long, police and fire commissioner, and William V. Keegan, finance commissioner. William J. Edwards, water commissioner, was unable to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Roeder spoke first. She explained that her duties involved administration of budgets involving about 100 employes and well over $300,000. In addition to supervising street repairs and cleaning, sewers and the various public buildings, Mrs. Roeder also has responsibility over Constitution Park and other parks in the city. A new responsibility has been looking out for the maintenance of siphons and conduits in the new flood control system.

Included in her future plans were some eight or 10 programs. Among these are more efficiency in the sewer department, an overall plan housing and care of animals, care of trees and the reduction of soil erosion. Other plans discussed included increased fees for new sewer installations, a bond issue to finance a 10-year "honest-to-goodness" street improvement program, regulations for streets in new subdivisions, widening streets before buildings are constructed along them and building a new street to the Jane Frazier housing project in Mapleside. The last job is required under the contract for the housing development, the cost to be shared by the city and Federal government.

Commissioner Long repeatedly emphasized in his remarks that the prime need for the police department is an adequate training program for probationary policemen. He said he has been discussing ideas with police officials around Maryland the past year and hopes to be able to get it started in the near future. The difficulties are getting proper instructors and finding the time in the policemen's heavy schedules for the training. Other plans for the police department as outlined by Long involve reorganization of the department on the supervisory level and a pedestrian traffic program. For the fire department the most pressing need is a new fire truck for South Cumberland which already has been ordered.

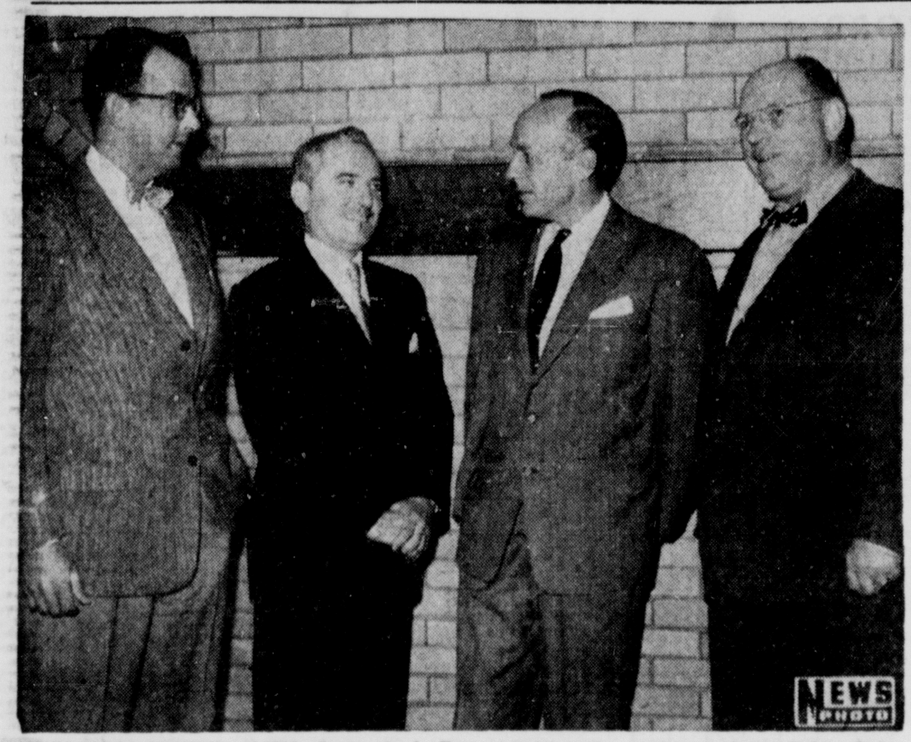

Wants New Industry

Last of the commissioners to speak was Keegan. He was the only one to talk from a prepared text. The others spoke from notes. He stressed that the city's government has been subject to rising costs. He noted that operating costs in the past 10 years have doubled but the tax rate has increased only about one-sixth.

"As you know, my great interest is in bringing new industry to

Ten Youths Face Trial In Juvenile Case

Foster Homes Found For Deserted Tots

Police last night said they will summon at least ten more youths for Juvenile Court hearings in the delinquency case of a 15-year-old girl who was found abandoned, with her seven brothers and sisters, in a run-down South End home Monday.

Two men were arrested Tuesday on warrants charging they had carnal knowledge of the girl, and two others were picked up and held for investigation. All four were released yesterday pending further investigation.

Detective Lt. James E. Van said last night that "at least ten other boys under 18" would be summoned in the case whenever a hearing date in Juvenile Court is set.

The girl, who is being held in the county's Juvenile Detention quarters, is charged with being a delinquent minor, and the mother, in County Jail, is charged with contributing to the girl's delinquency.

Temporary lodgings were found for six of the other children, ranging in age from three to 12 years, by the Allegany County Welfare Board, and an 18-year-old sister was turned over to the Salvation Army.

More Than Production Needed, du Pont Says

Clubs Told To Think Of Spiritual As Well As Material Values Here

"America cannot defend democracy solely by stepping up production," James Q. du Pont, administrative assistant in the Public Relations Department of E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company, said in a talk before Cumberland's service clubs yesterday at Central YMCA.

He explained that this ideological war can be won by democracy only if its followers are motivated by its spiritual as well as its material values.

"We are working while our Rome is burning," he said. "I believe that many more of us American business and professional men must take more time off from our work to think about our specific problem of the slow creeping fire of statism. Then, having thought, and thought deeply, we must devote a generous portion of our waking hours and energy to fighting in the battle for men's minds today."

Hypnotized By Work

He pointed out that there are too many business leaders who are dangerously hypnotized by a passionate reality for work. "Production is blinding us innocently, cost reduction by cost reduction, pay increase by pay increase to the rock of destruction.

"Too many people," he said, believe that the only necessary defense against communist ideas is a high standard of living in the United States. Coupled with this, he continued, is the conviction that the only weapon in the communist arsenal aside from the use of brute force is the appeal to the selfish nature of man.

"Communism," he declared, "can breed anywhere there is a spiritual vacuum; in dire poverty, in the middle class, or in the home and family of a multimillionaire. The pure Marxian Commie and the tyrant, or the despot, are both wide awake on this point. They fully realize that one unselfish convert is often worth 10,000 needy ones. The real value of such converts is that they 'catch fire' inside. They become crusaders with a mission. They are dedicated to a cause. They want to help others."

"And the path to almost every one of such subverted crusader's heart is a hypocritical appeal to the unselfish, the finer side of his make-up.

Must Live Together

"Too many of us," he emphasized, "are working while our house is, burning. We must take time off from work to think about these things. We must stop working productively and start thinking. In our production, he said, we turn a deaf ear to those who cry 'fire.' We say let the ministers and sociologists take care of it. But we all can help stop the threat of Communism.

"First of all," du Pont went on, "is that we can change and improve our actions. We can speak, write, broadcast." He told local business men they could utilize all the speaking and writing talent of the organizations to which they belong. We should live together.

"It will take men, not boys, on the bridge of business, men who can see into the darkness and curves ahead."

He pointed out that there are those who start educational programs and campaigns, but at the same time make a natural but unforgivable mistake. For their campaign themes they appeal to the selfish side of their audiences, appeals that work on the selfish and materialistic side of people. He gave examples like "free enterprise gives us this and that more than what Russia has.

"We are playing up the selfish too much," du Pont continued. "We should start to play up the unselfish side that we underrate so much.

To Fail Is Defeat

"The United States," he observed, "with its heritage of freedom tracing to the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, can make such an appeal to the unselfish in all honesty. To fail to do so is to invite defeat.

"I know the importance of television sets, bathtubs and automobiles. None the less, if we are honest with ourselves, we know it

Apple Growers Deny Fixing Fruit Prices

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Dec. 3 — An official of a Winchester fruit concern said today that his firm had prices similar to those of another company because of stiff competition — not because of any price-fixing deal.

J. P. Arthur, sales manager of the Shenandoah Valley Apple Cider and Vinegar Corp., told a Federal Trade Commission examiner that his firm had to consider the competition of National Fruit Products Co., located 30 feet across the street in Winchester.

The FTC has charged the Appalachian Apple Service, Inc., a combination of fruit growers, and five apple processing firms with conspiring to fix prices in violation of trade regulations.

Arthur testified that Shenandoah put out a price list identical with National's in 1950 because Shenandoah needed more apples than formerly due to an expansion of its plant.

Usually Paid Bonus

Prior to 1950, he said, 75 to 80 per cent of the apples purchased by Shenandoah were grown by persons financially interested in the plant. Before 1950, Shenandoah usually paid a bonus on apples during the season after negotiating for them at list price, he declared.

Arthur said no bonus was paid in 1950 or has been paid since. He added that Shenandoah still owes for some of the apples bought in 1950.

Others who testified at today's hearing were C. E. Johnson of Sperryville, an apple grower, and Roy McLanahan of Covesville, apple grower and broker. Both are members of the Virginia Apple Commission.

In reply to questions by government attorneys, Johnson testified he was a member of Appalachian Apple Service because of his service on the state commission. Virginia's seven apple commissioners are all directors of Appalachian.

Johnson said he received the price list issued by apple processors prior to the 1950 season and these were the prices paid for his apples.

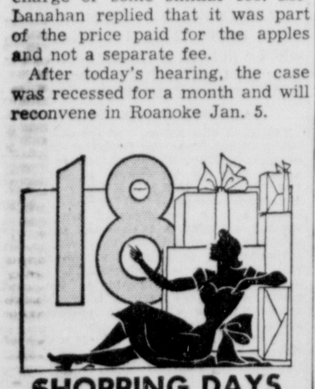

Installment Payments

The government has charged that the price fixing occurred in 1950.

McLanahan maintained that the reason apple prices in his books were broken down into two columns was that payment was in two installments. The books indicated one sum equivalent to the list price of apples, and, in a separate column, listed an additional 43 cents.

Government attorneys asked if this 43 cents were not a hauling charge or some similar fee. McLanahan replied that it was part of the price paid for the apples and not a separate fee.

After today's hearing, the case was recessed for a month and will reconvene in Roanoke Jan. 5.

Hearing Called On Fluoridation Of City Water

Officials Will Act After Session Today

The Mayor and Commissioners will hold a public meeting at the City Hall at 1:45 p. m. today for a final airing of views on the proposed fluoridation of Cumberland's water supply.

Mayor Roy W. Eves called attention to this meeting last night during a discussion of city problems with the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce. He invited interested Jaycees to attend the session.

Some time ago the Jaycees adopted a resolution endorsing fluoridation of the city's water supply.

Mayor Eves observed that only two or three citizens have raised intense objection to him concerning the proposal which has been advocated as a means of reducing tooth decay, especially among children.

In response to a question from George R. Hughes, Jr., a Jaycee, Mayor Eves stated that he believed most of the objection he has heard were unfounded. He remarked that two large cities, Baltimore and Philadelphia, have just started fluoridation of their water supplies.

After today's hearing, the officials will decide whether to approve or reject the plan, Mayor Eves concluded.

Police Still Seek Girl Shoplifter

City Police last night were still trying to track down a 17-year-old girl shoplifter who walked out of Police Headquarters Monday night while she was waiting for officers to question her.

Detective Lt. James E. Van said he checked several leads as to the girl's whereabouts yesterday, but was unable to locate her.

The girl, who told police she was from Midland, escaped while officers were checking to see whether several items she was carrying when arrested had been stolen.

Officer Robert L. Gilpin, who nabbed the girl, said she had picked up several articles from counters in six Baltimore Street stores.

The girl slipped away through an unlocked door leading to the police chief's office, and then to the street, while officers were busy.

A police janitor saw the escape and notified police, but officers said the girl ran down Liberty Street to Baltimore Street and was lost in the Monday evening shopping crowd.

Chamber Is Not Sponsor Of Coupon Book Promotion

The Chamber of Commerce yesterday announced it is not sponsoring a merchandise coupon book promotion which is now under way in Cumberland.

Books of tickets which are being sold in the city, the Chamber said, entitle the buyer to "free" or "cut-rate" merchandise, service or admissions. A similar program was undertaken here last year.

The Chamber said many people seem to be under the impression that the Chamber or a local mercantile association is conducting the promotion. Chamber of Commerce spokesmen said the Chamber's Mercantile Bureau is not sponsoring the sale, has not endorsed the book, and has not assumed any responsibility.

According to the Chamber, the books are sold by a telephone caller who tells the person called that he has been chosen as a recipient of a ticket book, for a stated fee.

Inmate Will Go To Va. For Trial

Douglas Lurty Smith, a young Virginian who is serving a term in the Maryland Reformatory for Males at Breathedsville for a breaking and entering conviction here, has received permission to be transported to Manassas, Va., to testify Friday as a material witness in a trial involving homicide by automobile.

Associate Judge George Henderson has signed an order authorizing Virginia State Trooper John Dula to transport young Smith from Breathedsville to Manassas, Va., for the trial. He will be returned to the Reformatory immediately after the trial.

Judge Henderson acted after State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher filed a petition setting forth the facts in the case. Smith was sentenced in Allegany County Circuit Court after pleading guilty to breaking and entering the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company premises at Narrows Park and stealing goods valued at $540.98.

At the time of his conviction here, Smith was free under $500 bond as a material witness in the homicide trial at Manassas, Fletcher stated. Stanley A. Owens, Commonwealth's Attorney for Prince William County, Va., at Manassas, has requested Henry Russell Raymond, superintendent at the Reformatory, to permit Smith's transportation to Virginia for the trial Friday. Judge Henderson's order permits Smith to be taken to Manassas at Virginia's expense.

Youth Cleared Of Delinquency

Juvenile Magistrate Alban C. Thompson yesterday cleared a Flintstone youth of a charge of breaking and entering Saturday night.

Thompson said Dewey Lytle, 17, was found not guilty of a delinquency charge in which he was accused of entering a Flintstone home and setting fire to a set of curtains.

Thompson said earlier reports that Lytle's case was dismissed so he could enter the Navy were false and pointed out that the Navy cannot accept men in the service when enlistment is a condition of a court sentence.

Explaining the case, Thompson said Lytle had been to a dance in Flintstone and was going home in his father's car when snow on Polish Mountain caused his auto to stop. After attempting to make the hill several times, Lytle went to a friend's house to borrow chains.

After knocking several times, Lytle decided the boy's mother had retired so he went to the window of the friend's bedroom. After raising the window he ignited a match to see if his friend, Alvin Dolly, was in bed. As he held the match, the curtains near the window caught fire, but Lytle tore them down and extinguished the flames. A blind was left burning unknown by Lytle but it caused no damage.

Thompson said Lytle learned later that his friend's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dolly, were visiting the home and were sleeping in the younger brother's room.

Lytle was arrested Sunday by Trooper Robert D. Wolford.
